Letters to the Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following letter, addressed to the "Carmel Chamber of Commerce" was forwarded to the Pine Cone by Harriet Mayer, secretary of the Carmel Business Assn. because of its special interest to our readers.

On the evening of November 30, 1970, we arrived in Carmel, in a downpour of rain.

Being a Monday, many of our familiar restaurants were closed, but we found an intimate, quiet place called Lazlos, a Hungarian restaurant near 7th.

After a delicious dinner, with excellent service and a most friendly atmosphere, we decided to take a short walk, before registering at a motel.

We walked toward Ocean, then down to Monte Verde, where my husband entered the Sundial Lodge to inquire about accommodations, while I browsed outside, enjoying the shop windows. I continued to walk past the motel to 7th and around the corner, up toward the little Church of the Wayfarer, and the street where our car was parked.

As I reached the corner intersection by the church, I was accosted by a young man, who knocked me to the sidewalk and ran off down 7th, toward the ocean with my purse.

With my legs bleeding from the knees down, my shoes lost, I was able to stand, and call for help, but no one was in the immediate area. I saw a lady coming up 7th, from the Green Lantern. I called for someone to stop him, but she didn't understand.

She helped me back to the Sundial Lodge, where I had last seen my husband. And where they called the police, who arrived in moments.

We were visitors, stranded, without money, check book or credentials, which were all in my purse.

Kate and Charles Feek, the managers of the Sundial couldn't have been more cordial, helpful or understanding. Mrs. Feek brought first aid to clean up my wounds.

They offered, then insisted we accept accommodations with them, gratis.

We can't say enough in praise of them, in the hopeless, lost feeling we were experiencing. Accepting their warm, friendly hospitality restored our faith in human nature, and that kindness and concern for one's fellow man, still exists.

We would be proud to recommend them for the Citizens of the Week - Month or Year Award.

The police also were most cooperative, kind and understanding, combing the area for the assailant. Offering to take me to a first aid station, and making a detailed report of the incident.

We feel the personal expression of our gratitude, for the goodness and kindness shown us, by those helpful Carmel Citizens, important enough to receive recognition and commendation, by your association.

Gratefully yours,
MR. AND MRS. CHARLES HAFRON

To the Editor:

The Carmel Pine Cone is to be congratulated on obtaining as Music Editor, Dr. Irving W. Greenberg whose sensitive reviews of local performances as well as of San Francisco operas we have greatly enjoyed.

Not only does he have the knowledge of music but the skill in expressing his evaluation frankly and without bias. We may not always agree, but a critic cannot please everyone all the time nor should he try to do so.

Artists can profit by fair appraisal of their talents, even more so than by praise. This is an important service the critic can render.

Both Dr. and Mrs. Greenberg, in the short time they have lived in this community, have given freely of their time and services. They have made a host of friends who appreciate their warmth and dedication.

Dear Editor:

Thank you very much for the excellent newspaper coverage of the work of The GEM Bach Mai Foundation. I am very much appreciative of your extensive coverage.

If I may make one comment, especially since I have waited six months for the approval, this Foundation is Incorporated under California State Law with State and Federal tax-exemption thereby making all donations tax deductable. It may not make too much of a difference that this was omitted, but, I shall make it more clear to you in further matters. Please excuse my making this small comment.

I shall keep you in touch of all future progress of The Foundation.

Thank you again.

Sincerely,
MISS GEORGIANNE E. MATTHEWS

LOCAL RADIO announcer, on the heels of a recital of theater attractions, added, "And held over for a second big week—more heavy rain and wind!"

SIGN OVER a Carmel desk: "After this rush is over, I'm going to have a nervous breakdown. I worked for it, I earned it, I deserve it and nobody's going to cheat me out of it."

AN OLD-TIMER in Carmel, Bob Norton, who arrived as a small boy in 1902 by horse and buggy, has retained the true old-time Carmel spirit. He has planted roses outside the fence in front of his home, so all passersby can enjoy them. So far no one seems to have taken advantage.

A SMALL battered truck pulled up to the curb. The back was piled with worldly goods covered by a tarp. The front was occupied by a young serviceman in uniform. On the window behind was lettered in grease pencil: "3 years of hell. Going home!"

NOT UNTYPICAL was a phone call to the Pine Cone recently from a subscriber in a Bay Area town. She started out, "Yours is the most hated and the most looked-forward-to paper." She explained that she "hated" it when her Pine Cone was late reaching her, then unhappy when reading it "because we're not there in Carmel!" She admitted to reading Lois Renk's real estate ads before she scanned the headlines. Reads all the classified ads. in fact. "And if that man who's been advertising for a wood-burning cast-iron stove doesn't find one soon, I'm tempted to buy one and bring it to him! At least it would give us an excuse for a trip to Carmel."

Remember When?

50 YEARS AGO:

From the Pine Cone, Dec. 9, 1920:

Strange looking priests, foreign soldiers, dukes and duchesses, continue to appear on the streets of Carmel in the early morning and at dusk.

The work of filming scenes in "Foolish Wives" still goes on. The Monte Carlo "set" at Point Lobos remains standing through rain and wind, and it seems as if the elements are favoring the picture-makers, for the rains have come mostly at nights and the days have been sunny.

Director Eric Von Stroheim states that the exterior pictures of the scenario will be completed this week. As most of the interiors have been made, it will not be long before the public will get a glimpse of the big production.

If you read it in the Pine Cone you may safely repeat it.

Miss Eleanor Garrison is visiting here with Mrs. F.B. Comino of Santa Barbara. Miss Garrison is a granddaughter of William Floyd (sic) Garrison of Civil War fame.

Carmel is soon to have another school for classic dancing and its related arts -- swimming and walking -- conducted by Portia Mansfield Swett and Charlotte Perry. Both of these ladies are favorably-known here and will doubtless receive much patronage.

25 YEARS AGO:

From the Pine Cone, Dec. 7, 1945:

A public meeting will be called shortly by the Carmel Unified School District Board of Trustees to discover what plans the commuity (sic) wants drawn for an auditorium at the Carmel high school, Superintendent Leo Harris told Fritz Wurzmann this week.

The city council saw City Attorney Peter Ferrante out of office with regret and welcomes home from the Navy the former city attorney, William L. Hudson, with speeches and resolutions at the regular Wednesday evening meeting.

Nancy Krupocki will represent Mary, and Henry Overin, Joseph, in the Nativity Tableau to be presented by the Sunset students Wednesday and Thursday, December 19 and 20 at Sunset Auditorium.

Sunset School Notes

On November 25th, I had a birthday party, I was eleven years old. My guests at the party were Henry Overin, Mike Slippner, and Bob Laugenour. We had potato salad, hamburgers, and a big chocolate birthday cake. -- Arleigh Jones.

"Revolution and Religion" will be the sermon theme next Sunday morning by Dr. James E. Crowther at the Church of the Wayfarer.

10 YEARS AGO:

From the Pine Cone, Dec. 8, 1960:

The City Council suddenly felt as rich as all get out last night when City Clerk Larry Rose told them that the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea owns land and improvements valued at $3,198,500. That first figure is three million.

Frank Lloyd, last night at sunset, stood amazed while a deer bounded across the beach just south of Ocean Avenue, plunged into the ocean, swam to Pebble Beach and disappeared across the golf course.

If you doubt this, says Mr. Lloyd, a mother and father and their small girl also witnessed the deer's dip. He later found them tracing the animal's footprints across the sand from Scenic Drive. He must have been in a state of deep astonishment because he forgot to ask their names, and he's a former editor and reporter.

Paul Mercurio, Carmel resident for 40 years, took oath of office Monday in Sacramento as a member of the State Board of Barbering Examiners.

Carmel High's varsity basketball team got off to a good start in league plan last Friday night as it clipped the hustling Live Oak Acorns, 37 to 33, in a typical early season game. The Padres were in front all the way and were able to keep the game in control as the Wilkin twins and Scott Forbes picked off most of the rebounds.

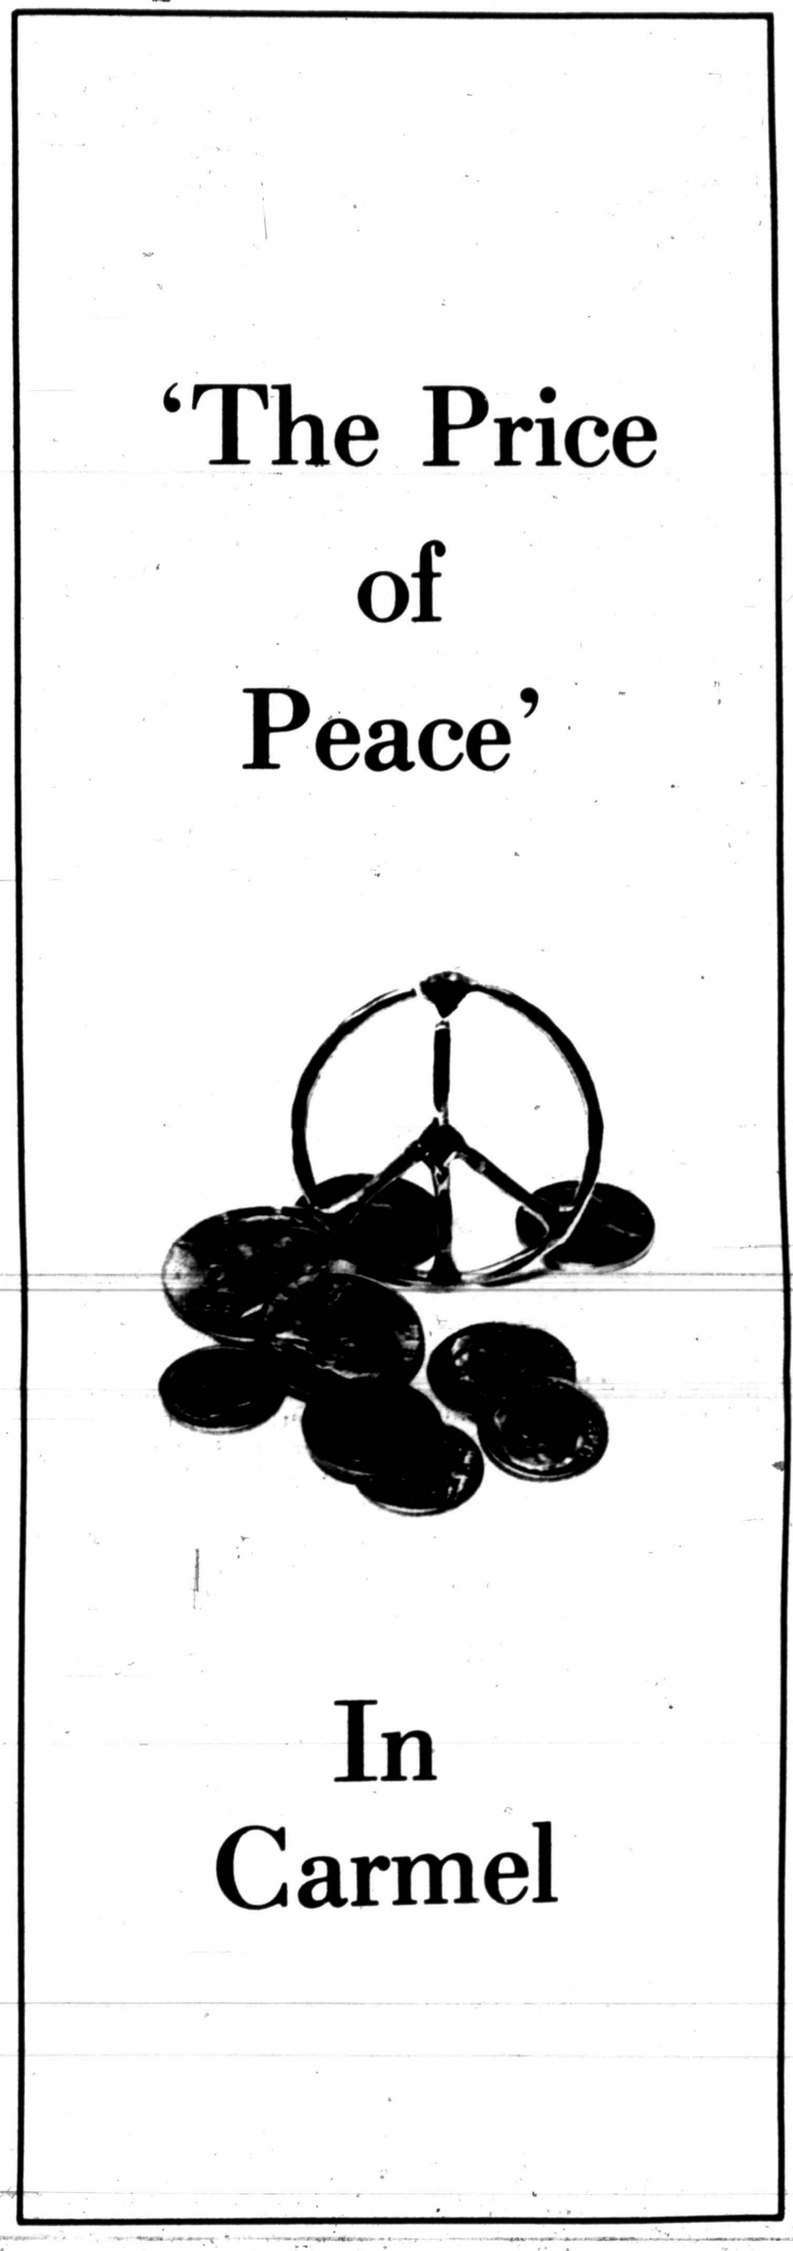
'The Price of Peace' cut down hippie influx, says Bayless



By GARY FRANTZ

A pamphlet published by the City of Carmel earlier this year to deal with undesirable transients is gaining a nationwide appreciation.

The document is called "The Price of Peace in Carmel." With sweet, authoritarian reasonableness, the pamphlet tells the reader a dozen things he can't do in Carmel, from sleeping on the beach to lying on the grass.

There are references to appropriate ordinances:

"Language is necessary to communication, but Section 639.7 of our code says that the use of profane, vulgar or abusive language is unlawful if it incites a breach of peace. In other words, use whatever language you want in communicating with your friends, but if you get careless or carried away and your language starts a fight, then you are in trouble. If you feel an impelling urge to fight or use abusive language, please do it somewhere else."

The target of these messages is officially the visitor at large and practically that creature created some years back for public education and vilification, "The Hippie."

"We listed things young people, in particular, wouldn't be aware of," says City Administrator Hugh Bayless. The folder is Bayless' creation.

According to Bayless, Carmel was suffering from a hippie invasion during the summer months. They congregated around Devendorf Park and assaulted sensibilities. One time, says Bayless, a group of males surrounded an elderly lady and badgered her to give them money for wine and bread.

The pamphlet was definitely written with the intention it would help stem the flow of hippies, says Bayless.

"We must be selectively exclusive if we're going to preserve Carmel's uniqueness," he says.

American Legionaires volunteered to hand out the pamphlets downtown with particular reference to citizens with long hair, no shoes and potentially destructive intentions.

According to Bayless, "The Price of Peace"—or some related agency—apparently turned the trick. The hippie problem in Carmel was down 50 percent this summer over last, he said.

"Maybe Carmel's just not the place to come any more," says Bayless. "Maybe the pamphlet had some effect. Who knows?"

"Straight" response to the folder has been almost as vigorous.

"Insulting," was the comment of one long-time Carmel lady during a discussion on the street.

One potential Carmel retiree claims he's looking elsewhere because he detected an unfriendly tone behind the prose.

When the Pine Cone learned that City Hall is maintaining a file of letters commenting on "The Price of Peace," we trucked on down expecting to encounter an abashed Hugh Bayless culling through abusive assaults on his good intentions. An expectation remarkably spare of sociological insight, of course.

For of approximately 30 letters, two can be called unfavorable, a couple noncommittal (the University of California Government and Public Affairs Reading Room wants one for its files) and the remainder smashingly enthusiastic.

Many of the letters were written in response to an Associated Press story which gained national distribution earlier this year.

"Advertising Cuts Carmel Hippie Invasion" read one headline:

CARMEL (AP)—This Pacific town used a little negative advertising to reduce the annual summer invasion of hippies and the city administrator says the program cut "the young transient problem" in half.

Some of the letters were sent by visitors who had latched on to a pamphlet.

Whatever the source of inspiration, the note of shared agony rings clear.

How pleased I am to know that your delightful city has taken positive steps to protect itself from the Hippies. My congratulations! It has always been my contention that the spinelessness of those in authority who call it tolerance, has nearly ruined our country—Mrs. Elsie C. Amidon, Los Angeles.

Thank goodness some people still have guts. I am sick of the way we are coddling this element.—Mrs. Fred A. Shane, Piqua, Ohio.

Writing as just one of the many hundreds of past Southern California honeymoon-type visitors to your beautiful community, I wish to say thanks for your efforts to keep Carmel a truly desirable place for people throughout the State to enjoy.—Mrs. Faith M. Camann, Cypress, Calif.

We, too, have a problem similar to yours, and although our problem has not yet become acute, we are doing what we can to discourage this element.—Innkeepers of Virginia Beach, Va.

The majority of letters are from other resort communities: Estes Park, Colo.; Kailua, Kona, Hawaii; Tucson; Santa Barbara; Sun Valley, Calif.; Rocky Hill, N.J.

Orange County is well-represented.

One comes from the chairman of "the newly formed Environmental Improvement Committee of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce."

There's even one from the U.S. Department of Interior, Yosemite National Park.

After establishing their fraternity and airing their views, most of the correspondents conclude with a request for a couple of copies of the folder. They generally seem incredulous that the written word could have such startling effects on hippies.

Bayless is obviously pleased with the response.

He shrugs off the negative comments.

"If I ever have the chance to avoid your fine city, I certainly will," wrote John M. Powrter of San Diego.

"That's fine with us," says Bayless, unruffled and smiling.

Bayless says the pamphlet will be reprinted and distributed again this summer if the circumstances demand it. He plans to make a few changes in the wording, particularly the section relating to swimming, which now reads:

Some people insist on doing it, even though we have posted our beaches as unsafe and two or three people a year manage to drown themselves in the surf. We don't advise it, but we won't stop you. If you do get into trouble while swimming, we probably won't rescue you either.

"Some people seem to feel this is a little callous," says Bayless with a smile.

The other change will probably be on the pamphlet cover which features a handful of coins surrounding a peace symbol. The John Birch Society claims the peace symbol is communist-inspired.

PAMPHLET COVER: This is the cover of the pamphlet printed and distributed by the City which has attracted nationwide notice. City Administrator Hugh Bayless says it helped reduce the inflow of hippies into Carmel last summer by 50 percent. It is scheduled for reprinting next year, with some revisions, and a probable new cover.

Hurst-Lindsey nuptials

MR. AND MRS. BOB LINDSEY

All Saints Church on Thanksgiving Day in Carmel was the setting for the marriage of Mrs. Esther Gooding Hurst (Mrs. Eugene E.) and William Lon Lindsey.

The double-ring ceremony performed by the Reverend David Hill at noon, was attended by the immediate family.

The bride wore a street-length ensemble of champaigne colored silk and wool with a band of natural ranch mink ending the coat. Her white orchid corsage completed a beautiful picture.

Dianne Lindsey, daughter of the groom, was maid of honor and Gregory Lindsey, the groom's son, was best man. The bride was given in marriage by her son, Wayne Hurst.

Later in the afternoon the wedding party joined family members at the beautiful ranch home of Mrs. Henry Holme in Carmel Valley for a combination wedding and Thanksgiving dinner.

The bride is active in many civic functions on the Peninsula and is a member of the Board of Directors of The Monterey Museum of Art. She is an artist and teacher as well as a graduate of The Mason Sappho Academy of French Dressmaking and Design.

Lindsey is owner of the Carmel Bridal and Formal Salon, and the W.L. Distributing Company of Phoenix, and an Arizona radio station. He is also an account executive with KMBY in Monterey. He serves on the board of directors of the Advertising Club of the Monterey Peninsula and is also a licensed Lay Reader at All Saints Episcopal Church and a member of its Vestry.

The couple will make their home on South Guadalupe Street in Carmel.

Jo Anne Willard Bohle weds Thomas S. Musser

Jo Anne Willard Bohle became the bride of Thomas S. Musser Nov. 28 in her mother's Carmel home. The Rev. James Brock of St. Dunstan's Church, Carmel Valley, officiated.

The bride was attended by her daughter, Wendy Bohle, and the groom's attendant was Joel Bartlett.

A glow from many candles softly lighted the ceremony. Vows written by the bride and groom were exchanged.

A champagne buffet followed.

Mrs. Musser is an honor graduate of the University of Texas and is general services supervisor at KPIX television station in San Francisco.

Mr. Musser graduated from the University of Indiana and has his master's degree from the University of Washington. He works with the Educational Television Center, University of California Medical School.

The couple will make their home in San Francisco.

The conscience of Carmel

It's time to act on library tax

By GUNNAR NORBERG

DO YOU REALIZE that the City of Carmel is the only city on the Monterey Peninsula in which taxpayers pay BOTH a city tax AND a county tax for library service? And are you aware that the cost for library service here -- on a per capita basis -- is probably the highest in the whole state? If you divide up the tax cost, it comes out -- in the present fiscal year -- at a little more than $25 for every man, woman, and child living in the city.

To give you an idea just how that $25-per-person-per-year library cost compares with nearby cities, a fairly recent state-wide per-capita breakdown showed the per-person-per-year cost to be $6.21 in Monterey; $5.94 in Pacific Grove; $3.71 in Salinas; and $5.13 in Santa Cruz. (Seaside does not maintain a separate city library and its taxpayers pay only the county library tax).

If you think the figures for Carmel are exaggerated, you can do the arithmetic yourself. The City of Carmel appropriated $91,516.00 for use of the City's Harrison Memorial Library in the present 1970-71 fiscal year. Besides all that, the County of Monterey is charging taxpayers in the City of Carmel, a county library tax of seven-and-a-half cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Since this year's assessed valuation in the City of Carmel is nearly $28 million, that county library tax will take nearly $21,000 out of the pockets of the City's taxpayers. If you add together the city-and-county library-tax "take", the total exceeds $112,000.00.

The only other number you need to work this out for yourself, is the City's present population, and the preliminary 1970 census figure for Carmel, is 4,478. When you've done the adding and dividing, you're bound to come up with that huge $25-per-capita library cost in Carmel.

SO, YOU ASK, just what can be done about it?

For one thing, the City Council can act to eliminate the county library tax -- the one that other cities which maintain their own city libraries, such as Pacific Grove and Monterey, do not pay. And when can that be done? And how?

Here's both the "when" and the "how" (section 27155 of the State Education Code), which says in pertinent part:

"The ... legislative body of any city ... may, on or before February 1st of any year, notify the (County) Board of Supervisors that the city ... no longer desires to be a part of the county free library system. Thereafter ... the property situated in the city ... shall not be liable for taxes for county free library purposes."

If the Carmel City Council were to act in time -- that is, by February 1st -- city taxpayers would stop being saddled with a county library tax, starting next year. And this would save them a county-library-tax outlay of something like $21,000 next year, and in succeeding years. Also Carmel would get in reasonable step with most other cities which do not compel their taxpayers to pay both a city and county tax for library service. Besides it could be a first step in re-establishing a fee system for library cards issued to people outside Carmel's city limits -- a fee Carmel's library had to stop charging two years ago when it tentatively joined a county-wide library exchange system.

Here I use the terminology, "tentively joined", because the City Council vote was a touch-and-go 3-to-2 decision, with two of the Council's present members -- Mayor Barney Laiolo and Councilman Frank Falge -- voting "no". Just before the vote was taken, both Laiolo and Falge brought up the question of the county library tax -- a matter which they seemed to feel, should be resolved before any consideration should be given to the joining of any county-wide library-exchange system.

IF THE CITY COUNCIL were to take the step of eliminating the county library tax by February 1st, the next important action would be withdrawal from the county-wide library-exchange system which the City joined back in 1968. Action to withdraw from that system has to be taken by April 1st of any year when the City Council wants to consider it. It is Carmel's membership in this county-wide system which forbids Carmel's library to charge any fee to any library borrower not only just outside Carmel's immediate city limits but also anywhere else in the county (or, now, in adjoining Santa Cruz county as well).

While the City of Carmel is presently able to bear the heavy cost of supporting the currently extensive service given freely to so many outside Carmel's narrowly circumscribed city limits, and not just to those relative few inside those limits, this constantly growing and expanding service could, one day, face the city with fiscal and tax crisis.

And it must be remembered that one of the requirements for participation by Carmel in the county-wide library-exchange system, is that the City of Carmel "...may not reduce local support ... below that level established in the fiscal year immediately preceding that in which ..." it joined. Budgeted City support in that particular fiscal year -- the 1967-68 year -- was already a high $80,000.

PROVISION FOR WITHDRAWAL of a city -- such as Carmel -- from the county-wide library-exchange system, is provided in Section XIV of the city-county agreement which Carmel signed back in 1968. Here's the actual wording: "Any party hereto ... may withdraw from the system by resolution of its governing body. Such withdrawal shall be made prior to April 1st of any year, and shall be effective as of July of the year withdrawal is made ..."

If Carmel's City Council were to act to withdraw by next April, Carmel's participation in the county-wide library-exchange system would end next July. The City then would be free to establish a reasonable fee-card system for people outside its city limits, who wished to use its library services, and thus to begin to get some proper revenue from such persons, to support the Harrison Memorial Library here.

However, the first step should be to lift the burden of the county library tax from the shoulders of city taxpayers, and that step would have to be taken soon if the terminating action is to be completed by the next deadline date -- February 1st.

ALLENS TO MEXICO

Char and Bud Allen left Tuesday for two weeks in Mexico which will include a convention of the American Hotel and Motel Association in Mexico City, a two-day buying trip in Guadalajara for refurbishings for La Playa Hotel of which Bud is manager, and Puerto Vallarta by Dec. 15 for Christmastime festivities.

The four Allen children, Tom, Tim, Patrice and Laura will be joined by cousins, when Bud's sister-in-law, Mrs. Elizabeth McEneaney and four of her six children join the Allens for the Puerto Vallarta holiday.

The families will do all their gift shopping for each other "on the economy," taking nothing with them.

The Allens had hoped to rent a house for Christmas season but found none available, so the hotelman had to settle for a hotel, Maison del Los Arcos on Gringo Gulch. Bud related that he and Char and five other couples had rented a holiday house two years ago in Puerto Vallarta—the same house in which President Richard Nixon stayed on his last Mexican visit several months ago. "I'll never be able to afford that house again!" opined Bud.

HOUSE GUESTS

Mrs. Phyllis Jervey entertained as house guests recently Mr. and Mrs. Alden Gilcreast, formerly of Carmel, Clifton Hazard, an old friend from Fullerton, and his brother Harold.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelo Drizari entertained the Jervey house guests at an Albanian Independence Day supper, with all native cuisine prepared by the Albanian-born hostess. Mrs. Drizari also danced in native costume for the guests.

POLAR READER

"I don't think you have a Pine Cone subscriber at the South Pole," correctly guessed Mr. Violet Beahan. "So here is one for my son, Cdr. B.A. Carlson, USN. Those abbreviations in his address stand for U.S. Naval Support Force Antarctica—otherwise known as Operation Deep Freeze.

"They support our 2,000 scientists at the South Pole. Bud is a meteorologist and was a professor at the Navy School in Monterey for two years.

"He mentioned that the Navy also must look after visitors and among the 30 or 40 who were there the week he wrote were the U.S. Ambassador to New Zealand, the president of the New York Stock Exchange, chairman of the finance committee of Dun & Bradstreet, the senior vice-president of Merck, chairman of Northwestern Life Insurance company, a cricket player from New Zealand, the president of AMOCO, the chief executive of the Rockefeller Foundation, science editor of the Svenska Dagbladet of Stockhold (one of Sweden's major newspapers), the editor of a newspaper in Mexico—and an admiral. Not a dull duty station.

"Bud called last night from the Hallett Station (U.S. and N.Z.) on Antarctica's ice cap. A group of ham operators in the U.S. relay the calls under an operation they call the MARS NETWORK—for servicemen around the globe to call the U.S."

SHOW RIBBON

Maria Kastros, 14, daughter of Tony and Marionga Kastros of Carmel, won first prize in the hunter class at the Santa Cruz County Pony Club horse show last week.

COLE IN CARMEL

When the senior Westons, Cole and Maggi, decided to enter the junior Westons in school in the Virgin Islands before tackling a transatlantic voyage on their boat, sons Kim and Rhys and daughter Cara outvoted them. So they are back in Carmel, the Mediterranean trip postponed. Eldest son Ivor stayed on the boat and is working on the island. Nobody mentioned how six-year-old Matthew voted.

Cole needed to return for business reasons, anyway, explained Maggi. He also is working on a book about his late father, renowned photographer, Edward Weston.

"And I have been signed by the William Morris agency," said Cole's wife, whose professional singing name is Maggi Woodward. "It doesn't matter much where I'm based. I have a two-week engagement starting New Year's Eve in the new Gallery Room of the Park Plaza Hotel in St. Louis."

Except for Ivor not being with them, all are looking forward to Christmas together at home. It just wasn't the same on the boat, they declared.

BALLARD SHOW

Pacific Grove art center's Little Gallery is currently showing 20 paintings and drawings by Robert Ballard, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fischer of Carmel. The exhibit shows Ballard's personal interest in spatial relationships as they apply to space travel. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily except Monday.

The artist is gallery director for the College of Arts and Crafts in Oakland, and also teaches painting and drawing there and at San Francisco State College.

Bob will leave Jan. 1 to become director of the art museum in Plymouth, New Zealand, largest gallery museum in that country. With him will be his wife, the former Gay Coggin, and their children, Alex, Alethea and Abraham.

Their stay will be for two to five years. Bonnie Fischer, Gay's mother, explained that Bob's contract is for five years, "but if they're too homesick after two, they can come home." She was regretful that the Ballards cannot join the rest of the family for Christmas.

Previous honors to the young artist include purchase awards by San Francisco State College, College of Guam, CCAC and a Guggenheim Fellowship. He has also filmed and shown extensively, given lectures on painting and film production in the Bay Area.

MELENDY TO NASSAU

Anthony Melendy, Carmel artist and sculptor, has gone to Nassau, the Bahamas, with his small son, for several months, exhibiting his works.

NATIVES RETURN

Mary and Jon Elber, back in Carmel for the "39 Craftsmen Bring Christmas" exhibit in which Mary showed her batiks, took the occasion to visit local kinsmen. While they stayed with Jon's mother, Mrs. Sara Elber, young son Nathaniel shared the home of his other doting grandmother, Mrs. Violet Weisiger. He also visited with his first-cousin-twice-removed, Mrs. Phyllis Jervey, and called on great-great aunt Blanche Cartwright.

ALLIANCE PARTY

Col. and Mrs. James L. Hathaway will entertain members of the Alliance Francaise of the Monterey Peninsula at the French-speaking group's annual Christmas party. Each member will contribute a small gift to place under the tree and later be exchanged.

Honorary members Pierre and Eliane Boissiere, owners of the chic Patisserie Boissiere in Carmel Plaza, will offer their usual great Christmas specialty, La Buche de Noel—Christmas log.

Reservations should not be made with the Hathaways, but with the president of the local Alliance, Mrs. Jerome Carlson, at 624-3195.

PLAXTONS BACK

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Plaxton have returned to the area to spend the holiday season with their daughter and son-in-law, the Don Browns. Since Mr. Plaxton's retirement as Finance Officer for the City of Carmel last Jan. 1, the two have been trailering around the United States and Canada.

They are staying with the Don Browns in the Carmel Valley house of which the four are co-owners. Soon after the New Year, they and their trailer will take off again for Death Valley and other southwest desert spots, for an indefinite time.

Scouts fashion Christmas toys

Photos by George T.C. Smith

HMMMM. NOW WHAT HAPPENS wonders Cheryl Cleary, right, while her Scout leader, Mrs. James Sanders, figures out the next step.

NEXT YOU LOOP it back and forth just so, the way Michelle March is doing so carefully.

THEN YOU TIE IT in the right places to make a head, body, arms and legs. Helen Grice, Sue Ellen Wood and Liz Still have their dolls well underway at this point.

for migrant farm children

Christmas is, above all else, a time for reaching out with love, for giving with one's hands and heart, for sharing with others the joy and promise of Bethlehem.

In keeping with the spirit of the season, members of Girl Scout Troop 2063 have devoted their last several meetings at Sunset Center to making toys for migrant farm children living at Camp 21, near Chualar.

Nimble fingers have turned skeins of yarn into bright dolls, stitched bean bags and stuffed animals, pasted together picture books and cut puzzles from heavy cardboard. This week, for their final project, they will make creches from balsa wood.

Their hours of work, under the direction of their troop leader, Mrs. James Sanders of Berwick Dr., Carmel Valley, and Mrs. Jean Wilsdon, will culminate Saturday when everything is taken to Camp 21 for a gala Christmas party.

In addition to the hand-made toys, the girls will be bringing boxes of books, toys and clothing donated by members of St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church. Navy families connected with the Postgraduate School in Monterey are also contributing to the Christmas party.

There is still time for other residents of Carmel and Carmel Valley to contribute new or almost new toys, books and clothes for the camp, which at present houses about 18 families with over 100 children. For information call Mrs. Sanders at 624-4759.

SOMETIMES SOME EXPERT assistance is needed. Here Mrs. Jean Wilsdon ties a finishing bow on Gail Frost's doll.

WE DID IT! Donna Weshenfelder, Sandra Fulton and Sandy Harrison smile at their finished dolls while Kim Cleary, left, gives hers a finishing clip.

HANDMADE TOYS destined for impoverished migrant farm children in Chualar dangle like whimsical ornaments in the Girl Scout meeting room at Sunset Center. Kim Cleary is adding a perky beanbag to the display of items made by Troop 2063.

Our Churches

Wayfarer

Dr. Herbert W. Neale will preach on "Advent Speaks to the World" this Sunday at the Church of the Wayfarer, United Methodist Church.

The Couples Club December meeting is scheduled Dec. 21 with a period of fellowship at 6:30 p.m. followed by a buffet dinner at 7 p.m.

The church choir will present a holiday program.

Hosts are the Herb Neales, Albert Stoessers and John Vikings.

Student Recognition Day will be Dec. 27 with young people from college and military service helping with the service and coffee hours.

The Commission on Membership and Evangelism has embarked on a program to send church members to others' homes. The visits begin after the first of the year and should be completed before Lent season.

A committee of 60 church members is being formed. Those who wish to serve on the committee can obtain further information by phoning Mrs. Leonard (Evelyn) Carson, chairman, 372-9300; Mrs. Earl (Iris) Stewart, 624-3909; Mrs. Carl Wester, 375-5455.

Christian Science

The basis for expecting divine guidance and protection will be brought out at 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. services Sunday at the First Church of Christ, Scientist.

Keynoting the Lesson-Sermon entitled "God the Preserver of Man" is the Golden Text from Psalms: "The Lord loveth judgment, and forsaketh not his saints; they are preserved for ever."

From Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy this passage will be read:

"The history of Christianity furnishes sublime proofs of the supporting influence and protecting power bestowed on man by his heavenly Father, omnipotent Mind, who gives man faith and understanding whereby to defend himself, not only from temptation, but from bodily suffering."

The second part of a two-part program, "Helping Children Pray," will be heard on Sunday. One of the questions answered will be, "What means can be given a child for praying?" This radio series, "The Bible Speaks to You," is heard regularly over station KRML at 7:45 a.m.

welfare and who enjoy meeting together in Christian fellowship," according to association member Margaret De Graf.

There is a Bible studies class from 9:30-11 a.m. in the library.

The regular Board of Governors meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Broaddus Conference Room. The newly elected board has been invited to attend this meeting also.

There will be a worship service with the word, carols and songs on Christmas Eve at 7:30 p.m.

The youth sermonette is "The Fear of the Lord."

The sermon: "The Light God Lit."

First Baptist

The Family Night Christmas Program has been changed to Dec. 20. It was earlier planned for Dec. 23. Calls from the office are being placed to seek supplies of fruits, cheeses, shelled nuts, sandwiches, cookies and candies.

Another change in date: the Rev. and Mrs. Rex Lindquist will show a film on the Holy Land on Dec. 13, not on Dec. 20 as formerly announced.

Evangelists Etienne and Virginia Kremer are visiting the church again.

Community

The Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula is planning a Christmas Eve service at 7:30 p.m. at the church. The story of Christmas will be told with word, carol and song.

The Women's Association of the Community Church sponsors a public Christmas program and musical tea Wednesday at 1:30 p.m.

Tularcitos School children, under the direction of John Farr, will sing. Miss Martha Pierce will present "Our Christmas Heritage."

"The Women's Association is composed of women interested in the church's

Carmel Mission

The Monterey Peninsula Choral Society and Monterey County Symphony Chamber Ensemble conducted by Maestro Haymo Taeuber present their annual Christmas concert at Carmel Mission Basilica Saturday and Sunday at 8 p.m.

The chorus and ensemble will perform "Ave Verum Corpus" and Mozart's "Coronation Mass." Carols from the 10th and 17th centuries will be sung. Maestro Taeuber has chosen Benjamin Britten's "Ceremony of Carols" for women's voices and harp accompanist.

Soloists will be Norma Jeanne Hodges, soprano; Linda Purdy, mezzo-soprano; James Hull tenor; Robert Armstead, bass; Phyllis Schlomovitz, harpist.

Presbyterian

The Annual Church School Christmas Pageant will be held Sunday in the sanctuary at 5 p.m. The pageant, which is directed by Mrs. Richard W. Bell, features young people from each department of the Church School. Music is handled by the Junior Choir under the direction of William F. Stone. A special offering will be taken for needy children around the world.

Among those participating in the pageant are Susan Arriola, Beau Bell, Chip Bell, Robin Bell, Joe Carter, Landi Compton, Sally Craig, Mark Cronander, Stan Farlinger, Laurie, Mike and Sue Harbert, Heidi, Loree and Milton Lawitzke, Chaco Mohler, Jane Millott, Tom Pelton, Jyl and Lisa Porch, Joe Putt, Riza Sheflik, Susan Snorf, Claudia Spencer, David Stone, Tony Tormo, Becky, Carolyn, Jeff and Kathy Walker.

Guitar accompaniment will be by Becky and Kathy Walker.

The sermon for Sunday by the minister, Dr. George Hunter Hall, is on the theme, "What's Christmas All About?"

December 17 at 1 p.m. the annual Chirstmas tea of the Women's Association will be held, according to Mrs. Paul Olson, president. There will be installation of officers followed by a Christmas program in the sanctuary, under the direction of Mrs. Gilbert F. Craig. The tea for all women of the congregation and their friends will be in Westminister Hall.

Lydian Singers perform at Wayfarer next week

The Lydian Singers from the First United Methodist Church of Los Gatos will appear in Carmel Dec. 17 to bring the spirit of Christmas in both sacred and secular music.

They will sing at 1 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall of the Church of the Wayfarer, United Methodist Church.

The Lydian Singers are a group of women organized during the 1958-59 season to present a single program for the Women's Society of Christian Service. They have been singing ever since.

The group started with eight members including one lady who doubled as first soprano and conductor.

Three members of the original ensemble remain and two have been with the group almost 10 years.

The Lydians perform music ranging in style from serious church pieces to frothy show tunes.

Annually they present a concert and give the proceeds to their church's music and scholarship funds. They also appear in convalescent homes and before professional groups.

For their performance here the Lydians will present "The Song of Christmas" by Ringwald, a story of the Nativity told in songs and Biblical verses.

After a short break for costume change, the ladies will sing the Ken Darby musical treatment of Clement G. Moore's " 'Twas the Night Before Christmas".

The program will be followed by tea in Fellowship Hall hosted by the Esther Circle.

The circle will have a business meeting at 12:30 p.m. in the Little Chapel.

Community 'Christmas Kitchen' open Friday, Saturday

One of the highlights of the holiday season will take place on Friday and Saturday, both days from 10:00 to 4:00, when the Filia Circle of the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula spreads its array of delectable foods and gift items for the "Christmas Kitchen", at the Church on Carmel Valley Road near Middle School.

A feature of both days will be the hot German donuts, made from a treasured old family recipe by Mrs. Arthur Johnson and her assistants, to be served with coffee. During the past few months, members have been busy making their famous ollalie jellies and jams, pepper jelly, shelled packaged walnuts, fruit cakes and kitchen gift items. A special "grandmothers table" will feature articles for children, and in addition, that well-known local celebrity will make pounds of his mouth-watering candies and pies will be made by a Monterey County blue-ribbon prize winner. There will also be packaged cookies and cakes.

Mrs. Charles Pearson, Filia president, and her sales crew, Mrs. Thomas Baxter, Mrs. Fern Wheatland, Mrs. Floyd Harber, Mrs. Everett Heisinger, Mrs. John Farr, Mrs. Ted Fehring, Mrs. Floyd Carter, Mrs. Charles Stone, Mrs. Frank Rose and Mrs. Julian Von Meier, are inviting everyone to come and share this day with them.

SUTTON

Ray Stephens Sutton of Carmel Woods died last Wednesday night in a local hospital following a brief illness. He was 59 years old.

Among his survivors are his wife, Vivian K. Sutton of Carmel Woods, and a son, Mervin Ray Sutton of Carmel. Merv is owner of Nielsen's market and was recently elected vice-president of the Carmel Business Accociation.

Mr. Sutton was born in Delaware, Okla., July 2, 1911. He lived on the Monterey Peninsula for the past 40 years.

He retired last year as superintendent for Stolte and Co. contractors. He previously worked for Comstock and C. Whittaker, builders.

Mr. Sutton was a past president of the Monterey Carpenters Union local, was a member of Carmel Lodge 680 F&AM and was on the board of directors of the Carmel Valley White Rock Club.

In addition to his wife and son, Mr. Sutton is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Myrna Lea Jelsesko of San Jose; his mother, Mrs. Julius Breshears of Carmel Valley; a sister, Mrs. Rose Mae Watson of Salinas; two brothers, Howard A. Sutton of Salinas and Stanley W. Sutton of Seaside; and four grandchildren.

Funeral services were held last Wednesday at Mission Morturay with Carmel Lodge 680 F&AM officiating. Burial followed in Mission Memorial Park.

ALICE FRIES

Alice B. Fries, mother of Dr. Robert H. Fries, assistant county health officer, died Dec. 2 at her home in Fresno after a period of failing health.

In addition to Dr. Fries, formerly of Carmel and now living in Carmel Valley, she is survived by her husband, John August Fries of Fresno, three granddaughters, Mary, Kim and Marta Fries, and two grandsons, Carter and Gregory Fries, all of Carmel Valley.

Mrs. Fries was born in Bakersfield on Oct. 17, 1894. She and Mrs. Fries were married 46 years ago.

JUNK

William Raymond Junk of Carmel died unexpectedly last Wednesday night while visiting in San Francisco. He was 64 years old.

He was born Jan. 25, 1906, in Dixon, Ill.

Mr. Junk worked 38 years with C & H Sugar, retiring as director of product development. He moved to Carmel four years ago.

HUDSON

A memorial service for pioneer Monterey Peninsula resident Mrs. L. Jay Hudson was held Tuesday at the Carmel Presbyterian Church. She died Friday in a local hospital at age 74 after being stricken at her Point Lobos home.

Mrs. Hudson was the wife of Rear Adm. L. Jay Hudson, whom she met as a student at Pacific Grove High School. They were married after his graduation from the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Although they resided at places around the world during active duty years, the Hudsons always maintained a home on the family property at Point Lobos. After the admiral's retirement they build their present home on the headlands.

Mrs. Hudson was a staunch conservationist who was intimately connected with measures to protect a natural state on the Monterey Peninsula.

Born Margaret Allan on Feb. 6, 1896, at Berkeley, she came to the Monterey Peninsula in 1897 with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander M. Allan, former owners of what is now Point Lobos State Reserve.

She attended Bay School near the Point Lobos home with her sisters Helen Allan Burnette of Los Altos and Eunice Allan Riley who died last year.

After high school at Pacific Grove she attended the University of California. Following marriage and her first son, Allan, she returned to the school and completed her degree.

The Allans were responsible for saving Point Lobos from subdivision in the early 1900's and operated it as a park until their death, when it was made a state park.

Margaret and her sisters were raised as conservationists and helped save Point Lobos from exploitation as a granite quarry for the Monterey breakwater. They later gave the main headlands of Point Lobos to the people of the state in memory of their parents.

Recently, she worked on efforts to save the coastlands south of Carmel.

Mrs. Hudson was an active worker and director of the Monterey History and Art Association, a member of the Monterey Foundation for Conservation and the Point Lobos Advisory Committee.

She was a member of the Presbyterian Church of Carmel.

In addition to her husband, she leaves four sons: Allan M., Thomas J., David and John Hudson; and 16 grandchildren.

Private family services were held at the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea, Pacific Grove, with Paul Mortuary in charge of arrangements.

Memorial gifts in the form of donations may be sent to the Community Hospital, Box HH, Carmel.

SPILLERS

Mrs. Laura Spillers of Carmel died recently in a local hospital. She was a Monterey Peninsula resident since 1941.

Mrs. Spillers was a native of Vancouver, British Columbia.

She worked as a librarian at the Naval Postgraduate School.

She leaves a brother, William D. Woods of Robles del Rio, Carmel Valley.

Private inurnment was held at the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea crematory with Paul Mortuary in charge of arrangements.

Memorial contributions may be made to Community Hospital, Box HH, Carmel.

COLEMAN

Mrs. Louise Lord Coleman, a resident of Palou and Casanova Streets, died at home Friday night at age 65.

Funeral arrangements are being handled by Paul Mortuary.

ARMANASCO

Mrs. Genevieve Marie Armanasco, a resident of Carmel for more than 20 years, died Sunday in a local hospital after several years of poor health.

She was a prominent patron of the arts.

Mrs. Armanasco, a native of Paris, France, lived at 25500 Shafter Way with her husband, August P. Armanasco, a foreign language instructor at Monterey Peninsula College.

Mrs. Armanasco was co-founder and past president of l'Alliance Francaise and a charter member of the Wine and Food Society.

She was a director of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art Association and for a time served as program director of the College Association of Public Events and Services.

In addition to her husband, she leaves a son, David Gerard; and a daughter, Perla Lee Armanasco, both of Carmel, and a brother and sister living in Paris.

Rosary for Mrs. Armanasco was recited Tuesday at Carmel Mission Basilica. Requiem Mass was celebrated in the basilica yesterday with burial following in San Carlos Catholic Cemetery.

Friends wishing to make contributions are asked to do so to the Santa Catalina School Foundation.

Mission Mortuary handled arrangements.

Choral Society Christmas concert this weekend at Carmel Mission Basilica

THE MONTEREY PENINSULA Choral Society in rehearsal for the Mozart "Coronation Mass," Britten's "A Ceremony of Carols" and other music of Christmas for their eighth annual Christmas Concert Saturday and Sunday at Carmel Mission Basilica (photo by Jerry Lebeck).

Benjamin Britten's brilliant "A Cermony of Carols" will open the Monterey Peninsula Choral Society's eighth annual Christmas Concert. This subtle and varied program of inspiring music, conducted by Maestro Haymo Taeuber, will be performed in the Carmel Mission Basilica on Saturday and again on Sunday both at 8:00 p.m.

This celebration, which has become the beginning of the Holy Season for many families in the area, will be heralded by a candlelight procession with the ladies' voices singing the "Ceremony of Carols", followed later by the full chorus of almost 100 voices in the "Geborn Ist Uns Emmanuel" by Praetorius and a traditional French carol, "Sleep Of The Child Jesus".

Phyllis Scholmovitz, well known concert harpist and recording artist now residing in Palo Alto, will accompany the Britten work and will be featured in Marcel Samuel-Rousseau's "Variationes Pastorales Sur Une Vieux Noel" for string orchestra and harp.

The Chorus then returns with the German carol "Kommet Ihr Hirten" and the hauntingly beautiful "The Darkness Is Falling" a carol sung by the Tyrolean peasants as they wind down the steep Alpine trails by lantern light to participate in the midnight Christmas Mass in the village below.

The second half of the program opens with the antiphonal "Haec Dies" for double chorus by Jacobus Gallus, which sets the stage for the familiar "Ave Verum Corpus" by Mozart.

The featured work of the evening will be one of Mozart's most moving works, the "Coronation Mass", with the Chorus joined by the Monterey County Symphony Chamber Ensemble and four local and accomplished soloists -- popular lyric soprano Norma Jean Hodges, mezzo-soprano Linda Purdy, tenor James Hull and bass Robert Armstead.

Tickets for the two identical concerts are $2.50 each and are available at the Monterey County Symphony office in Carmel's Sunset Center; Gallery Gifts Box Office in Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, Carmel; Abinante's in Monterey; Lily Walker Record Shop in Pacific Grove; and the Seaside Chamber of Commerce.

Tickets can be obtained by pre-paid mail order from the Monterey Peninsula Choral Society, P.O. Box 272, Carmel, California 93921 (please specify dates).

Tickets will also be on sale before the performances at the door.

Carmel High tunes up for Christmas

"CONCERT FOR CHIRSTMAS" will be presented by the Carmel High School Music Department Tuesday night, December 15th, at 8:00 P.M. in the Donald Craig Gymnasium.

The Choir and Chamber Singers will feature choral selections including a setting of carols by Alfred Burt, White Christmas, The Twelve Days After Christmas, Ding Dong, Merrily On High, and others. Greg Granoff will be the accompanist for the choir.

The Concert Band will conclude the program with a special arrangement of Do You Hear What I Hear? Christmas Music for Winds and the Farandole from the L'Arlesienne Suite.

Henry Avila, Chairman of the Music Department, is the director of the performing groups.

IS THIRTEEN A LUCKY NUMBER? This Dachshund puppy waits to make his debut on Sunday at the Del Monte Kennel Club's annual Puppy Match and Obedience trial. Judging at the event, held at the Monterey Fairgrounds, will begin at 11 a.m. There is no admission charge for spectators.

BRASS ENSEMBLE TO PERFORM MONDAY

A concert of Renaissance and Baroque music will be presented by the Monterey Peninsula College Brass Ensemble Monday, 7 p.m. in the Carmelite Monastery, on Highway 1 south of Carmel.

Conducted by MPC music instructor Henry Smith, who also plays trombone with the group, the ensemble includes students Bill Armstrong, Gene Short and Bob Moffett, trumpets; Chris Laiolo, tuba; and Mike Skiles, French horn.

The musical program has been planned, according to Smith, to feature pieces "originally written for the old churches in Eruope, which had reverberation times of 5.5 seconds. The chapel at the monastery has this same reverberation rate. That's why we love to play there."

The public is invited to attend without charge.

Junior League auditions for musicians

The Junior League of the Monterey Peninsula, Inc., will present the tenth annual Young Artist's Auditions on January 10 at 2:00 p.m. at the Monterey Peninsula College Music Building. The purpose of these auditions is to promote interest in music and to reward students for their accomplishments.

In order to qualify a student:

1. Shall not have reached his (or her) 19th birthday as of January 1, 1971;

2. Must be a resident of Monterey County or studying with a teacher in Monterey County;

3. Must be proficient in performing music of concert caliber;

4. Must be prepared to play a movement from the standard repertoire for solo instrument with orchestral accompaniment, performance not to exceed 15 minutes;

5. Should preferably memorize and make their selections suitable for a concert appearance with the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra;

6. Shall not have been a previous first-place winner. Any previous first-place winner may, however, compete on another instrument.

The two first-place winners may be presented as soloists with the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra for the 1971 Youth Concerts. The Junior League of the Monterey Peninsula, Inc. will give cash awards to the winners.

'There's a Girl in My Soup' next attraction at Studio

Now in its fifth year in London, the Terence Frisby comedy "There's A Girl In My Soup" opens at the Studio Theatre-Restaurant on December 18. Its Broadway run of 322 performances starred Gig Young as the bon vivant and gourmet whose casual romantic career is interrupted by a flip Carnaby Street "bird".

To his dismay, she regards him as an older man and seems to prefer an uncouth musician to his somewhat pretentious sophistication. Barbara Ferris all but stole the show with her interpretation of the girl and Goldie Hawn has been set the same task in the forthcoming Hollywood version.

Subsidiary amusement is provided by the leading man's outbound girl friend, the editor of the magazine for which he writes erudite gastronomical articles and the impertinent doorman of his London flat.

Under the direction of Bill Asp, "There's A Girl In My Soup" will play Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights at the Studio through January 23. In addition there will be performances every night between Christmas and New Year's, excluding December 25.

Reservations for all performances, including a gala New Year's Eve, may be made at 624-1661 or 624-2321.

Sunrise to Sunset

On Tuesday, Dec. 1, The Martha Graham Dance Company offered a program by 16 beautifully trained dancers -- truly a first for Sunset Theater in almost 20 years, when Miss Graham herself appeared with the company.

I had the pleasure of meeting Miss Graham after the performance, and the great pride of accomplishment was mirrored in her most interesting countenance, for her choreographic genius is world-reknowned and so evidenced in the performance of those classic dancers.

This program was sold out a week in advance and with three phones ringing day and evening, upstage, downstage, and me lady's office, I estimate we could have sold out once again.

As evidenced by this outpouring of requests for tickets, I'm convinced we could book many excellent dance and theater groups with equal success. It was gratifying to see so many young people out, and I'm just sorry these same youngsters missed the Symphony concert on Nov. 23, for it was an inspiring evening. The next concert is in January, and we hope to see you then.

Speaking of concerts, I would like to emphasize once again, do not miss the Thursday evening program of Christmas Music by the Fort Ord Army Band. The date, Dec. 10, 8 p.m., and there is no admission charge.

I discovered seven members of our own symphony are boys in the Fort Ord Army Band, so in part, you will be supporting both groups in attending.

I hope you will have visited our Friends of Photography Exhibit this month before our Dance program. However, if you have missed this, there is still time to drop in to see this excellent display, and especially the dance photographs, for Barbara Morgan is tops in this field.

As you pass my corner, at 8th and San Carlos, take another moment to drop by my office to see the Dick Crispo show.

We shall be hanging a show of religious paintings for the remainder of the month of our local painters and printmakers, and this promises to be a very fine show.

Before I say a rather brief adieu for this week, I would like to touch on the subject of dance once more, and quote that wonderful Cultural Affairs Congressional Hearings on the Arts and Humanities ... and this time, the article entitled "Dance: The Golden Age???", by Clive Barnes.

"By common consent this present dance season is the busiest and the biggest the United States has ever known. As Alexander Ewing puts it, "the golden age of American Dance". But that is about the only thing that is golden about the American dance.

American dance, both ballet and modern dance, is facing the most severe financial crisis in its history. Even though it is perhaps the one art form in which the nation effortlessly leads the world; even though it is expanding and proliferating all over the country, dance is in grave trouble. This is my ending thought: are we going to let great companies go out of existence, for our lack of support???

So long, Dorothy Bowman.

'Meanest thief' asked to return children's Christmas costumes

The "meanest thief" has been asked to return three robes stolen from the Forest Theatre Monday which were to be used this weekend in the Children's Experimental Theatre production of the medieval Christmas drama, "The Towneley Play."

"No questions will be asked," said Marcia Hovick, director of the children's theatre group. "We just want those robes back."

One of the stolen items, a black cape with silver brocade lining, was used in the theatre's recent production of "Beauty and the Beast." Two other robes and the cape were to be worn by the King in this weekend's production.

Although friends of the theatre group have managed to find substitute fabrics, and harriedly prepared alternate costumes, Mrs. Hovick said the costumes were treasured by the children, and they really wanted them back.

Anyone with any information regarding the whereabouts of the costumes is asked to call 624-1531.

Tree lighting ceremonies Tuesday night

The sounds of Christmas music will herald the advent of the yuletide season in Carmel Tuesday night when the traditional tree lighting ceremonies start at 6 p.m. on Ocean and San Carlos.

The combined childrens' choirs of All Saints Episcopal Church, Carmel Presbyterian Church and the Church of the Wayfarer will offer traditional Christmas carols under the direction of Mrs. Carl Welchner of the Church of the Wayfarer.

Tom Boyd, president of the Carmel Youth Center will serve as master of ceremonies.

Mayor Barney Laiolo, just returned from his trip abroad, will be on hand to speak.

The Carmel Business Association will make presentation of awards for the "best decorated stores" for Christmas.

Sound amplification will be provided by Fritz Haas of "Fritz Radio" of Carmel.

The tree lighting ceremonies are a traditional Dec. 15th event in Carmel. The City Council rejected a request at its November meeting from the Carmel Business Assn. to advance the date to the first week in December.

Arthur La Touf will be opening a new gallery this week on Dolores near Fifth in the little court around the corner from William Ober's shop, across from the Plum Tree. The La Toufs bought a weekend house in Carmel three years ago. Their visits grew to such proportions that Arthur closed his studio in Los Angeles, moved his paints and brushes to a studio at Sunset Center and became a Carmel resident.

A painter most of his life, La Touf studied at the Chicago Art Institute and the Chouinard School of Art in Los Angeles, where his work has been widely shown. This artist may be easily identified on Carmel streets by the constant company he keeps with a small white wirehaired terrier, named "Nappy."

At the Naval Postgraduate School I saw a stunning exhibition of the work of sculptor Jim Crane. His figures are a poignant response to his empathy with mankind. They are executed with great style and individuality.

I went to see Jim at the Cannery Row Sculpture Center, where he shares the studio with Gordon Newell, Russ Van Norden (famous for his beautiful wrought iron work), Bill Jamieson, Doyle Moses, Ralph Atkinson (chairman of the board of the Monterey Peninsula College), and David Ruff.

Born in California, Crane has been a dedicated artist since childhood. Of his education, a double major in anthropology and art at Fresno State College, and graduate work in political science and art at San Jose College, Jim says he is "grossly over-educated."

He spent a year traveling around the world, spending ten months in Karachi, Pakistan. From that base, he made extended trips into India. The cumulative effects of his education, life and travels are what Jim's sculpture expresses. He said, "I became aware not only of the physical hunger of the world's people, but also of the emotional hunger in our materialistically oriented society. The American public must be made aware of the hunger in the world and the hunger in their own souls before humanity can progress in unity...It is my realization that lack of communication and human understanding are the primary reasons for our apathy."

Crane received "first place" in the Religious Art Show at the Naval Postgraduate School. He has been honored with a one-man show at The Triton Museum in Santa Clara and The Perry House in Monterey

The Livingston Gallery on Dolores St. across from the Post Office, has devoted their entire first floor gallery to the dramatic seascapes of Eugenio Garin.

Born and raised in Odessa, Russia, Garin was a victim of the world war's upheaval. He spent several years in a displaced persons camp. After his release, he lived in Argentina, Spain and Italy.

His home in California is a trailer. He roams up and down Route One, stopping here and there to paint the brooding, turbulent sea, under sombre dolorous skies that are his hallmark. He is noted for his meticulous rendering of the movement and transparency of waves.

Upstairs, on the second floor, The Livingston Gallery is showing contemporary California artists, with oils and watercolors in a wide variety of subjects, still life, portraits, landscapes and sculpture.

A recent welcome addition to the collection are the paintings of Betty Plesche. Betty moved from Walnut Creek three months ago, bought a house in Carmel and lost no time in showing her work at the Livingston Gallery where it has been widely appreciated.

Gray Livingston, who owns and manages this gallery, also has another gallery in Cannery Row, across from Neil De Vaughn's.

Four prolific artists own and manage the Valley Hills Gallery in Carmel Valley near the Thunderbird Book Shop. Their only problem is lack of wall space, though their gallery is quite spacious, for their effervescent productivity.

Bernice Huber, well known watercolorist and art teacher at Sunset Center, is also a master craftsman in ceramics. Her vases and bowls are beautifully designed and decorated, polished off with her own particular glaze. A Christmas present I would happily welcome, are some cleverly life-like pottery rocks. These are useful and decorative, as they can be filled with water through small holes in the top, becoming flower holders, creating instant woodland scenes in a home's interior regions.

Stan Spohn, who works with acrylics, was an illustrator working at the Disney Studios, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and for Hallmark cards. He was supposed to retire in Carmel, but painting, working in the gallery and building a new studio have kept him too busy to think of it.

Lucille Hubert, a native Californian, graduated Magna Cum Laude as an art major at Stanford, followed by graduate work at the California School of Fine Arts. She is known for her fine seascapes, and her work is found in many collections.

Jean Hofsas works in various moods and materials. Of particular interest were paintings with ink, built up in layers and layers, upon antique Chinese golf leaf paper. It would be neglectful not to mention Ulysses, Jean's faithful Afghan Hound, who is the sitter for many of her drawings.

Lyceum artists show at Cypress West

Phil Coniglio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Coniglio of 26048 Atherton Drive, Carmel, will be one of the artists featured in a showing of student work sponsored by the LYCEUM of the Monterey Peninsula.

To be on display at the Cypress West Inn, Lincoln and Seventh Streets, this exhibit of paintings, etchings, and prints will open with a reception on Tuesday from 4 to 7 p.m. The show will remain on display through the Christmas holidays.

Besides Phil, the students whose work will be shown are Ken Bruchs, Pacific Grove, and Debbie Schadeck, San Benancio Canyon, Salinas.

The three young people were students in the LYCEUM's Summer Art Camp during the summer of 1967. Impressed with their talent, Virginia Blair Hannon (Mrs. Hugh Hannon) offered her studio and her time as a volunteer to the LYCEUM for a "tutorial" for these students and three others. The other students have since moved from the area, but Debbie, Ken and Phil have continued to work with Mrs. Hannon since the fall of 1967.

Gathering each Saturday, they now work nearly all day, although early sessions were half-days. The Hannon household has become a kind of "second home," where their work and their record collections are shared with the Hannon poodle and assorted cats. Mrs. Hannon has been teacher, co-worker and friend.

Art careers may or may not be in store for them, but Debbie and Ken will graduate from high school in June of 1970, while Phil, a student at Robert Louis Stevenson School, will graduate a year later.

The LYCEUM, an organization of volunteers from the Peninsula community, is dedicated to providing challenge and opportunity to learn in depth to gifted young people of the area.

Serving private, public and parochial schools, the LYCEUM provides programs, seminars, workshops, and tutorials in the sciences, humanities, and music as well as art. Students are nominated for enrollment in LYCEUM programs by school principals and counsellors. Leaders of LYCEUM programs are also volunteers, sharing their talents and skills with young persons especially eager to learn.

Eight Carmel artists in Seaside group show

Eight Carmel artists are among a group of 19 artists representing various nationalities whose works are being shown in an International Art Exhibition through December by the Seaside Art Commission in City Hall, Seaside.

C.Y. Lee, chairman of the Commission said, "We are proud that they are living and working and promoting the art culture here in our Monterey Peninsula. It certainly is a fitting climax to bring our Bicentennial year to a close with such a distinguished group of artists and their outstanding art works."

The Carmel artists, and the works they chose for exhibit are:

Girard Aken, "Asilomar Breakers" and "Niciso Landscape."

Eve Bell, "Boy in Bronze" and "Woman in Prayer".

Yet-Por Cheng, "The Cat" and "Running Horses".

Beth Garcia, "Sleeping Colt" and "Colt Scratching".

Jean Hofsas, "Monument Sedona" and "Spring Flowers".

Nancy Johnson, "Shore and Surf" and "Mendocino Backyards".

Reginald Machado, "White Barn" and "Summer Hills".

Sigismund Wolf, "The Martyr" and "Euterpe".

The Holiday Inn at Highway 1 and Rio Road will be the setting for the Red Cross Dec. 23 bloodmobile. The mobile unit will be in the banquet rooms from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. thanks to Richard S. Chatham, who invited the Carmel Chapter to use the Holiday Inn while he was manager there last summer.

He had been wanting to do something to help the Red Cross Blood program ever since the night of Dec. 12, 1968, when he was in an automobile accident on the way back from San Francisco. Taken to Stanford Hospital, doctors worked through the night to save his life, and 16 pints of blood were used in an effort to stop internal bleeding caused by a ruptured spleen.

Doctors left a compound fractured left arm until three weeks later, when he returned to Stanford to have it operated on and set, and a newly-detected heart murmur checked.

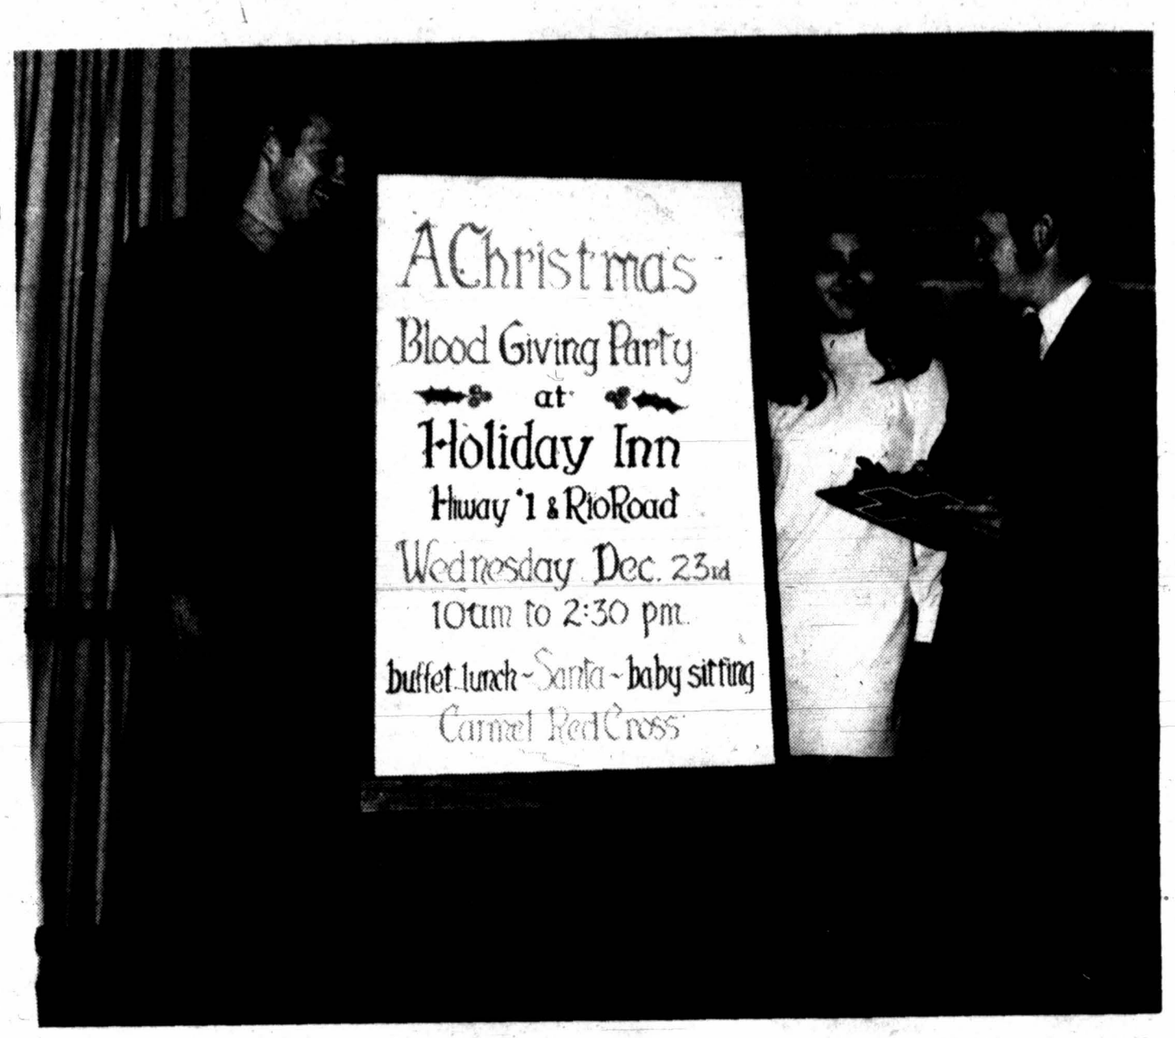
It had been discovered that a pen and pencil set he carried in his left breast pocket had bent in two during the accident and had pressed against the heart area resulting in a bad bruise, which in turn caused an abcess, leaving a hole in his heart the size of a pencil eraser.

Before he could undergo heart surgery, Mr. Chatham had to build up his strength and a heart catheter was inserted to keep him from losing any more blood. Finally, on November 9, 1969, surgery was performed, and thanks to the Red Cross the 22 pints of blood needed were on hand.

Chatham contacted Dorothy James, executive director of the Carmel Red Cross, and offered the facilities of the Holiday Inn for a future Bloodmobile. He said he wanted to repay in part a moral obligation he felt because of the blood he had used, even though replacements for most of the 38 pints had already been made by family and friends. It was decided to wait until the holiday season to take advantage of this offer because blood is most needed at that time.

Chatham was made manager of the Monterey Holiday Inn in October, and before reporting he briefed Thomas Deveau, his Carmel replacement on the commitment he had made for the December Bloodmobile. Deveau has since worked closely with the Red Cross formulating plans for its ultimate success.

"The gift of blood is the gift of life, I found out," said Chatham. "The spirit of Christmas is also giving, and it is to be hoped Peninsulans will heed the call and attend the Bloodmobile at the Holiday Inn, so that no one on the Monterey Peninsula in need of emergency blood will be turned away during the critical holiday period."



RICHARD S. CHATHAM signs up Carmel Holiday Inn staff members, James McManus and Andrea Azedo, for the Red Cross Bloodmobile which will be held at the Inn on Dec. 23. A recipient of 38 pints of blood to save his life following an accident in 1968 and heart surgery just a year ago, Chatham has a special interest in helping Red Cross. Photo by Jody Cooper.

John Brodie ponders dilemma: Super Bowl or Crosby golf tourney?

"Sorry, Bing, but I can't play today, we've got the Super Bowl." Or will it be, "Sorry, coach, I've got a golf date at Pebble Beach on the 17th."

Such is the dilemma of super star, John Brodie. Will last year's amateur winner of the Pro-Am partner again with Bob Rosburg to defend his title? Or will he chose to play with Willard and Washington in Miami?

The question of football versus golf will probably be settled one way or another before the official pairings are out.

Meanwhile, Brodie is listed by tournament director of play, Maurie Luxford—a Los Angeles Ram fan—as a tentative starter in the 30th annual Bing Crosby Pro-Am.

Among the pros sure to be here for their share of the $160,000 Crosby purse will be: Bert Yancey, Jack Nicklaus, George Archer, Bobby Nichols, Don Massengale, Bruce Crampton, Arnold Palmer, Dave Stockton, Bruce Devlin, Bob Rosburg, Lee Trevino, Ron Cerrudo, Doug Sanders and Billy Casper.

RICHARD (RICK) FIELDS, sitting in front of the fireplace in the new Bounty Room, latest addition to The Buccaneer, located in the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center. The new addition has doubled the size of the store, which opened last May. The Bounty Room features fine European suits, sportscoats and outer wear.

Citizens name two to board

Two new members have been elected to the board of directors of the Carmel Citizens Committee. Rockwell Hereford and H.K. Onstott were elected for two-year terms, joining three incumbents and four other directors whose terms do not expire until the end of 1971.

The board members continuing their terms are: Admiral C.W. Fisher, Earl L. Moser, Mrs. Alice Hughes, Mrs. Florence Josselyn, Harvey Hancock, Matt Ryan Smith and Rodrick Wilson.

Paul Sletton is secretary of the committee and Percy Wilson is treasurer.

Plans are being formulated for the regular annual meeting of the Citizens Committee to be held in January.

The new board of directors will elect a president and executive vice president from their group. A treasurer and a secretary will also be named after the January meeting.

Crackdown due on noisy vehicles

The state has placed a limit on the number of decibels permissible from vehicle exhausts but no one has yet manufactured a device to measure the noise level.

Therefore, Carmel's police have fallen back on an older law in their current campaign to reduce the noise pollution in the streets.

The older law makes it illegal to alter or modify an exhaust system to produce more noise.

"Unfortunately there are some vehicles with factory systems which are too noisy," says Police Chief Clyde Klaumann.

The campaign to cite owners of vehicles with loud mufflers was urged by Police Commissioner Ken Brown who reported citizen's complaints about noise.

"The officers get a little lax about enforcement and the fellows get a little braver," says Klaumann. "After a few arrests things improve."

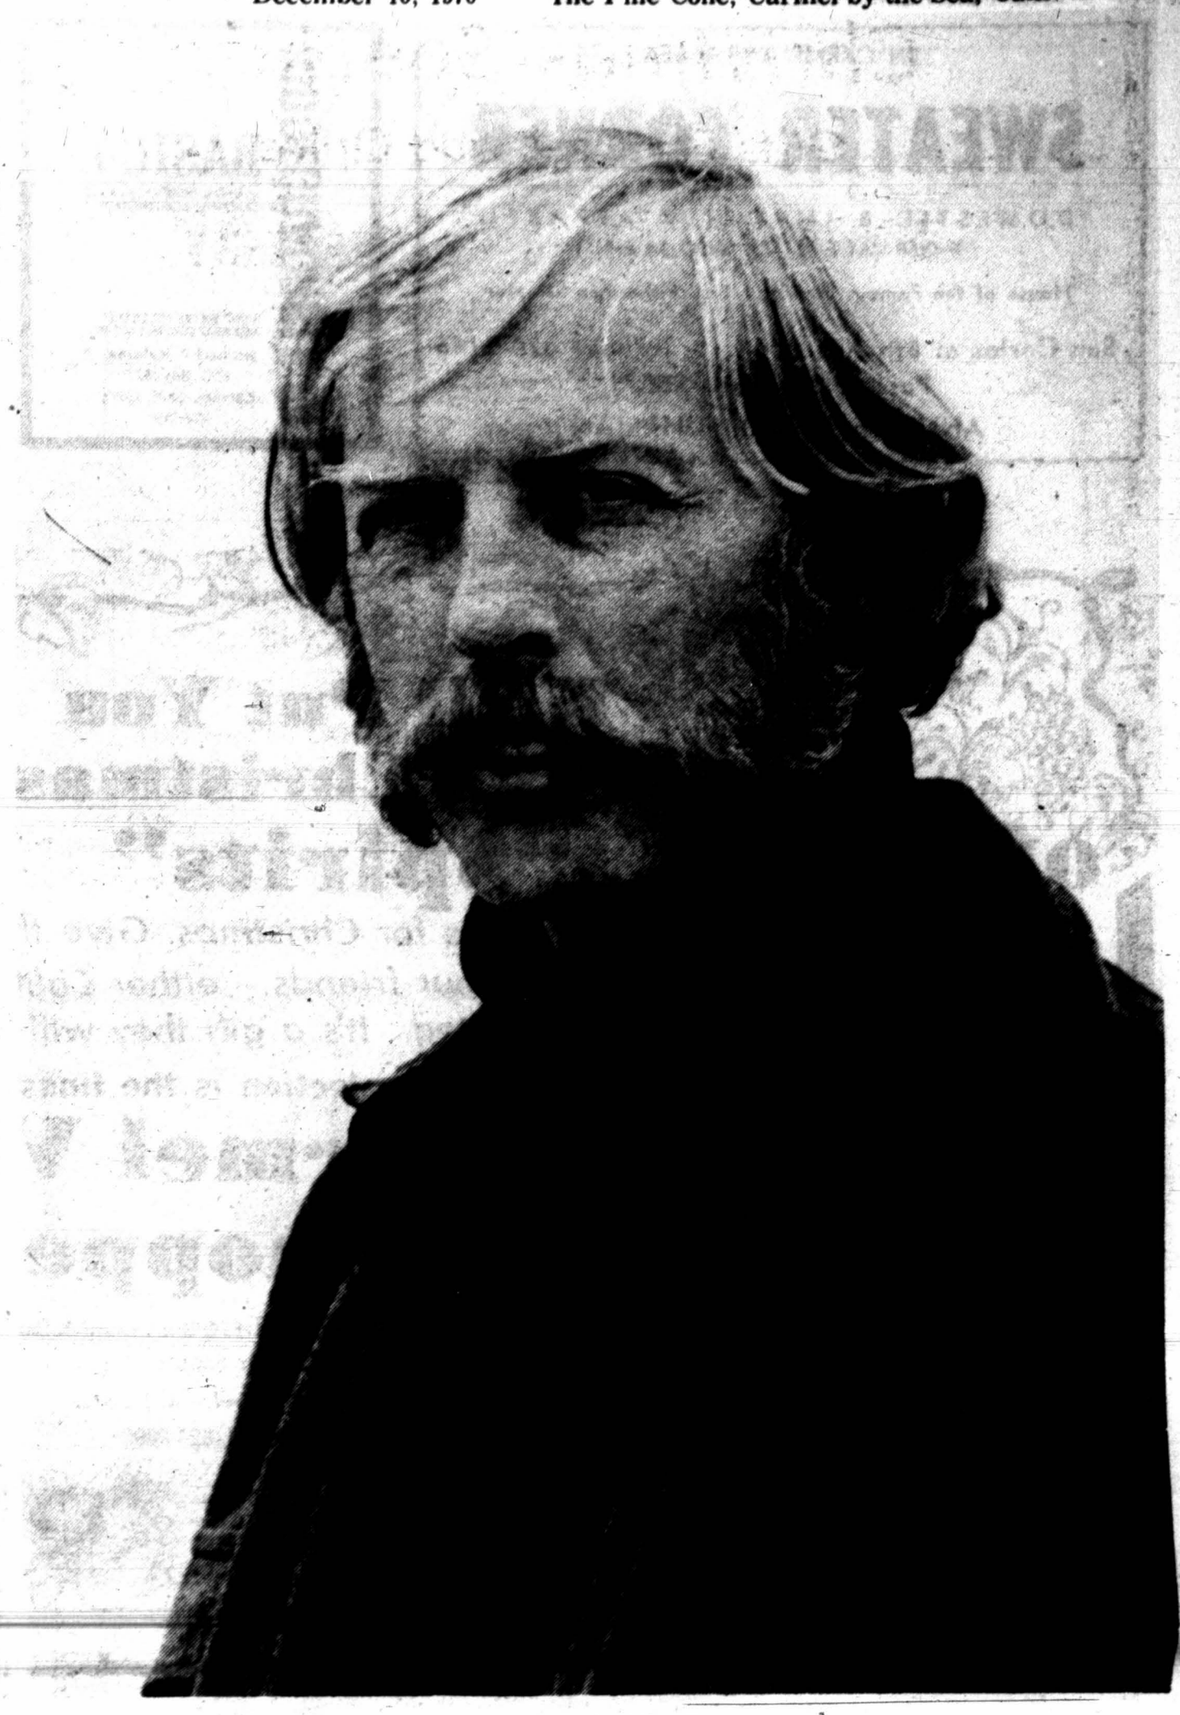
CARMEL CLOSEUP: Filmmaker Bob Blaisdell

His films aimed at making people act on earth's problems



BOB BLAISDELL

By GARY FRANTZ

Robert Blaisdell is a metaphor out of one of Marshall McLuhan's books.

He has spent a good portion of the past year in airplanes shuttling from one corner of the world to another. The remainder of the time his eye has been glued to a camera.

Blaisdell is a Carmel man whose career as a filmmaker is beginning to boom. He returned home two weeks ago from a contract with Lee Mendelson Films and NBC Television. During the year he visited South Africa, South America, the Bahama Islands and more than 30 of the United States filming television specials.

He worked with Lee Marvin and the Fifth Dimension on a show called "It Couldn't Be Done," with Peter Fonda on "The New Communicators" and with Flip Wilson on "The Guiness Book of World Records."

One of the records was the world land speed record set by "The Blue Flame" on the Bonneville Salt Flats. Blaisdell also filmed the world's tallest flag pole.

Much of Blaisdell's work the past year has been as a unit director. He directs and shoots a segment of a film to send to a central studio to be mixed with other elements.

He also creates complete films such as "Wild Flowers" and "Henry Miller in Big Sur" for Blaisdell's company, Black Lion Productions. ("I was sitting in the Red Lion one day drinking a beer when I thought of the name.")

Blaisdell and Gabriele Kilian are now editing the films at Bob's 17th and Valley View home on Carmel Point. "Henry Miller in Big Sur" is a half-hour documentary co-produced by Ron Bostwick about the master's life in Big Sur. The film should be completed about the middle of the year.

"Wild Flowers" is a theatrical short about two children with music by Rod McKuen. It is due shortly.

"Wild Flowers' shows children's first encounter with nature," says Blaisdell. "Kids have a great eye for things. It's a shame society frowns on their openness, that they have to grow up."

Bob grew up in Carmel and Monterey during the '40s. He obviously yearns to recapture the vision of a fresher country.

"All my films deal with nature," he says. "They say, 'get back to the country, get back to basic things.' They deplore the fact that we're paving over the country at a rate of a million acres a year. You can see this crap going on here on the Peninsula—although this is still one of the most beautiful areas in the country."

Blaisdell says the Peninsula is being raped by outside developers and slack local guardians.

"Upping land taxes drives out the small landowner like a farmer and brings in the wealthy, indiscriminant developer," he says. "The fact that supervisors allow this kind of thing to happen is appalling. We've already reached a limit on population in this area."

Blaisdell is also disappointed in Carmel development trends.

"I'm concerned basically about the shlock businesses and indiscriminate development. It really infuriates me to see people sell out and use the word 'progress' as a retrogressive act.

"I think we're starting to realize what's happening: the quick buck and totally raped landscape."

Blaisdell called the country's development "forced evolution."

"It seems people can't let natural evolution happen," he says. "People are being chewed up by the mechanization of society. They're forced to conform to a set of ridiculous rules."

Blaisdell claims bureaucratic attempts to deal with problems are ridiculously ineffectual.

"For every problem there's ten agencies and all they do is create red tape. Do you know that it costs more to treat the sickness caused by the pollution in the Mississippi River than it would cost to clean the river? They have signs posted warning you not to wade in the river. It's one big effluent.

"I've been flying around the country constantly. I've been to every major airport. When you ask why improvements aren't made, the answer is always, 'Well, we don't have the funds.' They have funds to fight a war, don't they? What about all those space program engineers who are out of work? Ten years ago they decided to put a man on the moon and they did it. Why not set all those engineers to work on cleaning up the environment or developing mass transit systems."

Blaisdell definitely sees his films as didactic devices.

"Mainly my films deal with motivation—to make people think. Some are very pretty, subtle. They try to seduce. Others confront the viewer. I don't care what people think of me but if you make one person think you've done something."

Blaisdell is medium height, slim, has pale blue eyes, a moderate walrus moustache and luxuriant sideburns. He wears brown boots, white jeans, a blue work shirt and brown corduroy jacket.

He still appears to be fatigued from the constant traveling, long hours and disrupted habits of the past year. "Every major airport in the country."

One sees Blaisdell as an electrically charged wire screen passing over the land attracting information particles. Tallest flagpoles. Peter Fonda. Arthur Clark future visions.

In South Africa, Blaisdell worked with a man who has found the key to dolphin language.

"Their vocabulary is at least as large as man's," says Bob.

Blaisdell is aware of the importance of the information movement. One of his current projects—along with plans for more movies—is a "total communication and feedback program company" he is planning with a Madison Avenue advertising executive. Every time someone creates something he sends it to a central data receiving station. Through this medium of some startling, new information carrying devices, subscribers can tap the central bank of any information they desire.

"The purpose is to motivate a person to get out and do things on his own," Bob says. "One thing then leads to another. The important thing is to get away from the insular life most people lead."

Petpourri

BY JUDITH EISNER

Last week we mentioned some of the misrepresentations that unethical pet dealers will resort to. One last word of warning: people advertise "Chihuaha-Poos" and "Cocker-Poos" at fancy prices. They often assure the enchanted buyer (for they produce adorable puppies) that these dogs will be recognized by the American Kennel Club for registration "any day now." Forget it.

The intentionally-crossbred dogs, be they "Cocker-Poo" or "Doberman Pinscher-Poo" are crossbreeds. The AKC couldn't be less interested in registering them as purebreds. And if you want to pay $25 or $50 for these pups, at least be aware that they are nothing more than crossbreds and no better, really, than the average mutt. They are adorable and lovable; whether they are worth fancy prices or whether you should take a trip to the S.P.C.A. to adopt a pet is up to you.

Assuming that you have your heart set on a certain dog or cat and have located a source, there are things you should be looking for before you buy.

Wherever you go to buy an animal, pet shop or private breeder, the first thing you'll want to look at is the place where the puppies or kittens are kept. There is no excuse for filth. With young puppies, you can expect a puddle or two, but not an accumulation of droppings. Kittens should have clean, dry litter pans, without a "cattery" odor. There should be no old, encrusted feed pans, no dirty bedding, no flies. There should be fresh water in clean containers.

If you find filth in any form -- leave -- and tell the person why! You cannot expect to buy a healthy pet if it has been kept in unhealthy surroundings.

Generally, you should not buy a pet less than six weeks old. Puppies and kittens should nurse for six full weeks and earlier separation from their mother should raise questions as to why. Eight weeks is an ideal age to buy a pet. The babies are "on their feet" and at an optimum age for socialization with humans. Don't feel, though, that anything older than eight weeks is too old. As long as the puppies or kittens have had regular human contact, the 10 or 12 week or older animal, is every bit as ideal and in many ways easier to train than the younger baby.

You will want to see the mother if she is available. She should be clean and friendly. If she looks haggard and thin, you can wonder if she's had enough to eat to feed her brood. Thin coats are a side effect of maternity in animals, so don't be too critical about that.

Watch the pups or kittens. No healthy animal is listless or apathetic. They may have been asleep, but upon awakening they should be alert, curious, playful and friendly toward people.

You want a friendly, outgoing animal. It's easy to lose your heart to the little one huddling forlornly in the corner -- but don't! Chances are he'll develop into a shy adult -- and you might wonder why the breeder didn't take the time to coax him into more trusting ways.

Well-bred litters appear uniform in size and coloring -- thus making the choice so much the harder. A uniform litter is an indication of good breeding. Avoid the largest or smallest in a litter, no matter how they stand out. While "runts" often grow to full size, they may be smaller and weaker for life.

Healthy puppies and kittens have clear eyes, clean ears, white teeth and shiny coats. There should be no discharge from eyes or nose. Ears should have no odor and should be free of coffee-grind-like particles which indicate ear mites.

There should be no bald patches on coats, and the puppies or kittens shouldn't scratch much. They should be firmly fleshed, but not overly fat or pot bellied, an indication of worms.

Except on breeds who have intentionally stunted or crooked legs, like Bulldogs or Dachshunds, legs should be straight and clean. Backs should appear level -- unless you're buying a Bedlington Terrier or a Bulldog -- and back legs should come straight down -- not turn in at the hock.

Check for blindness and deafness by moving your hand and snapping your fingers behind the animal's head. Check the stomach for umbilical hernia, a firm, rounded protrusion at the navel. Check the tummies for redness or scaly patches -- a sign of skin disorders.

Ask what the animals are being fed. Be suspicious of vague answers. "Table scraps and things" is not a suitable diet for growing babies.

Find out what inoculations have been given and what is still due and if they've been wormed. If you are buying a dog whose ears should be cropped or tail docked, they should have been done by eight weeks. Inquire into this, and ask what care they require.

Don't think you're being silly or fussy to look into these matters. You'd ask as many questions before buying a car, wouldn't you?

If you're satisfied by what you've seen and, as usually happens, you've been chosen by a particular puppy or kitten, you'll want a signed registration certificate if the animal is registered, a complete diet and a record of inoculations and wormings and a bill or sale or transfer of ownership.

You can make arrangements to pick up the pet just before Christmas or take him with you now. Whichever, you should walk away from this adventure feeling proud and satisfied and confident that you've bought the best and smartest pet in the world.

HOST LIONS CLUB

We led off the day by giving a hand to a needy Monterey Peninsula College student. His problem was one of vision during intensive reading. We have provided him with prescription glasses.

We also welcomed home Lion Jerry Winters from his Vietnam (and other points) journey with Sioux Scott, his theatrical partner. During the trip, he lost 10 rather needed pounds. On questioning he said Sioux would speak for herself at a later date. This will be a treat!

Our program speaker was Bob Goddard, an M.P.C. student who is group leader at Carmel High for "Young Life" with international headquarters in Colorado Springs, Colorado. The group, composed essentially of teenagers, has active units at Seaside, Monterey, Carmel, Pacific Grove, Salinas, Alisal and North Salinas High Schools. R.L.S. is represented with Pacific Grove High.

Each unit has an experienced leader who guides the group. At Carmel High, current meetings at private homes average about 30 and the number of thoroughly representative students is increasing.

Young Life meetings feature singing, music and a friendly atmosphere which leads to enjoyable relaxation. Young Life members are looking for purpose and meaning in life. They seek to "find themselves" and to find a worthwhile place in their (and our) world. Young Life sponsors and encourages outdoor activity of many types.

Young Life finds that the search for these objectives is best implemented through Jesus Christ and through His relation to daily life. Young people are not coerced into this belief. Young Life is nonsectarian. Young Life is growing both in active groups and membership.

Bob Boyles is Monterey County Young Life area director. Their office is on Cannery Row. The mailing address is P.O. Box 1251, Monterey, California.

As so often is the case, this worthy organization has need for contributions to cover local expenses.

—Fritz Nelson

YWCA

A seasonal "Calendar Tea," open to the public, will be given Sunday between 3 and 5 p.m. at the New Monterey Neighborhood Center, under the auspices of the Debutantes of the 1970 Monterey Peninsula Cotillion League.

Twelve beautifully decorated tables, one for each month of the year, will be presided over by individual girls of Peninsula cities, with prizes awarded to the two most elegant arrangements. The judges will be Mrs. Romayne Wetmore, director of the Neighborhood Center, Mrs. Ruth Hamilton and Mrs. Janice Roberson.

Chaplain Glen Bowen of Fort Ord will open the afternoon program, with commentary by Demetrice Hunter. Christmas music will be presented by a chorus composed of Mrs. Connie Mitchell, Miss Erika Sweet, Mrs. Marie Sweet, Mrs. Willie Ethel Williams and Patrick "Dee" Val, the "Singing Deputy," accompanied by Mrs. June Bower at the piano, and Louis Fragos, violin.

The young women pouring tea at the cleandar tables will include Karen Hansen, Hope Mothersell, Yolanda Mitchell, Erika Sweet, Debbie Rye, Melba Watts, Stephanie McMillan, Linda Beene, Susan Engholm, Gina Joyce, Cordella Nichols and Helene Joyce.

Many of the girls have been YWCA volunteers in the summer program of service at peninsula agencies. Mrs. Mary Lou Smart, chairman, and Mrs. Jack Simpson of Carmel, co-chairman, have announced that a $1 donation from each guest will be contributed to the newly organized YWCA of the Monterey Peninsula.

PADRE PARENTS

The methods and aims of the English department of Carmel High School were explained by members of the English department staff at a forum at the high school Monday night sponsored by Padre Parents.

Arthur Gumbrell, principal, opened the forum with remarks concentrating on the results of the English curriculum during the past four years. He then introduced members of the staff who enumerated the classes they teach and told of their own educational qualifications. English department members present were: Ray Gere, department chairman, Wally Le Valley, Romaine Hill, Ethelyn Hughes, Buzz Rainer, Dick Hilton, Diane Hardy, Peter Lyons, and Nick Zanides.

John Graham, counselor, was present to answer questions pertaining to college qualifications and admissions.

Ray Gere explained the evolution of the present English curriculum, noting the changes made in the past four years in an effort to update the curriculum with the purpose in mind to hold the interest of the student and to reduce drop-out tendencies. He emphasized the continuing purpose of the department: to impart to the students the ability to speak, read, write and, hopefully, to listen.

Questions were asked by the parents. Some of the answers given by various members of the department were: "Carmel High School still requires a student to complete four years English for graduation, although the state requires only three."

"The high school curriculum is based on a general outline prescribed by the state department of education."

"Upper class students have a choice of "new name and method" courses which gain the same results as English 11 and 12."

"All English classes presented are accepted as college requirements except basic English and 'yearbook.'"

"All teachers are available by appointment to discuss their courses with parents or students."

"Grammar is taught through use, in speaking, reading and writing."

"Papers are corrected by teachers and returned to students."

"Teachers conduct their courses in an approved but personal framework."

"English, as presented in the last four years at Carmel High School, has qualified all but a comparatively small percentage of graduating students for college level English."

Hugh Smith, Padre Parents chairman, welcomed teachers and parents to the forum.

Robert J. Kaller, chairman of the forum committee, presided during the question and answer period.

Padre Parents were encouraged by the comprehensive responses of the teachers and by the numbers of parents attending. The remark that the forum was like "an extension of Back-to-School Night" was overheard and deemed appropriate.

Further forums on other high school departments will be held at later dates.

—Mrs. F.W. Nelson

Discovery: Inner and Outer Worlds

The Friends of Photography have published a second photographic collection entitled "Discovery: Inner and Outer Worlds, Portfolio II."

The folder contains a forward by Wynn Bullock and 15 stunning black and white photographs by some of the nation's best photographers.

The portfolio opens with a sombre shot of a mountain of snow by Dave Bohn, includes a San Juan Bautista farm in fog by Carmel's Liliane de Cock and a portrait of a woman and several hands by Gordon Parks, and concludes with a curled Todd Walker nude figure.

"With the convulsive events and explosive changes in art, politics and education in progress, the search for meaningful guide lines to help direct our activities have never been needed more," writes Bullock.

"In photography from the most prestigious museums to the pages of popular national magazines photographs are presented which have been painted, sculptured, solarized, drawn upon, cut up, serialized, plasticized and subjected to every conceivable darkroom and hand craft device. So widespread is the movement that for photographers and photography it is a fact of life to face.

"In producing Portfolio II of fine reproductions, the Friends of Photography has been acutely aware of these changes and challenges involved in selecting fifteen photographs representative of the finest in contemporary photography."

The photolithography was handled by George Waters of San Francisco in an edition of 2,500 copies.

The portfolio sells for $14.50 or $11.60 member's price.

Dr. Wesley defends today's students

Dr. Edgar Bruce Wesley of Carmel, first recipient of the distinguished professorship honoring John R. Emens, president of Ball State University for 23 years, bristled at an interviewer's suggestion that today's students are not interested in the past because they fear there will be no future.

"This is a pose of insincerity," Dr. Wesley, a noted historian and social science educator, declared. "Everybody knows the past influences him. The young people today are magnificent! They have poise, ability and are better educated than I was at their age.

"It's true," he continued, "they live under a psychological burden of potential danger that we didn't have. It's a terrible cloud in everybody's life. There's a temptation to adopt an 'eat, drink and be merry for tomorrow there's the bomb' type of philosophy, but by and large the students today are great and they really want to learn."

To emphasize current interest in history, Dr. Wesley called attention to increasing crowds at national shrines each year. He does not, however, believe the crowds might eventually become a menace to the shrines. "Growing throngs can be handled by developing more historic sites," he asserted.

A 42nd cousin of John and Charles Wesley, the founder of Methodism, and his hymn writing brother, Dr. Wesley planned in 1961 to write a book about John as an educator and founder of Kingswood School at Bath. He did research in England, but didn't write the book.

"As a teacher," Dr. Wesley explained, "John was a poor psychologist, had some strange ideas about what should be included in the curriculum and was perhaps a little sadistic in getting his points across. Perhaps it was the times, but I wouldn't trust him with a child of mine!"

Dr. Wesley went on to say he admired John for some of his accomplishments. "He was a prodigious writer, traveled almost constantly and preached four or five sermons a day. An early riser, he once predicted Methodism would be finished when the denomination no longer had a 5 a.m. meeting," Dr. Wesley said.

Dr. Wesley, who now resides in Carmel, has done quite a bit of traveling and writing himself. His eleven books include: "American History in Schools and Colleges," "Teaching Social Studies in Elementary Schools," "Our United States: Its History in Maps" and "NEA: The First Hundred Years."

The historian, who will be 79 in December, intends to close his teaching career at Ball State. He taught at the University of Minnesota from 1930 to 1951, then at Stanford University, the University of Michigan, and has been a visiting professor at several other universities.

Dr. Wesley is a native of Bethelridge, Ky. and has an A.B. degree from Baldwin-Wallace College, Berea, Ohio, and A.M. and Ph.D. degrees from Washington University, St. Louis.

Boyer students in recital

The Gilbert Boyer Piano Conservatory presented students in a recital Sunday of compositions for solo piano and two pianos by Arensky, Bach, Mozart, Rachmaninoff and Turina. Also featured on the program were compositions by Carmel composer Randy Curtis.

Performing on the program were piano students of Mrs. E.C. Crittenden, Mrs. John Erickson, Mrs. Judith Mitchell, Mrs. Willia Rabinovitch, Mrs. Donald Rich and Mr. Gilbert Boyer.

A special selection, "Concert Etude," by Goedicke was presented by Robin Bell, trumpet, and Gregg Granoff, piano.

Performing students were Patricia, Kathleen and Danielle Collins, Cindy and Tammy Dellwo, Diane Hubert, Lolita Arnaldo, Jane Wingate, Isabella and Alexandra Titus, Mimi Bommersbach, Lorrie Hubert, Darla Stevenson, Claudine Vandersluis, Danny Concepcion, Robert Shefik, Robert Fielding, Robin Bell, Andre de Leos, Randy Curtis and Gregg Granoff.

In addition to parents and relatives of the performers, guests were Miss Sophie Harpe, Mrs. Margaret Aitkenhead, Mrs. Gerrit B. Bevelander and her daughter Karen.

PARTY PLANS . . .

BY PHYLLIS JERVEY

BY PHYLLIS JERVEY

This seems to be the season for cruising. For those of us who only dream of "the cruise that wasn't", it is with envy when Carmel friends recount the cruise that was!

Germaine Tilman, who has been a Carmelite for about twenty years, has recently returned from the ultra deluxe voyage to Hawaii. With her son, they visited four islands by air and returned on the Matson Lines' "S.S. Monterey".

Those six days of luxury, fun, swimming, and EATING was the part which interested "Party Plans". YES, we wish we could also take off for the Islands and especially to return via the carefree ocean way. Everything is provided on these super-modern ships excepting libations. No problem. Congeniality prevails.

For those who are relaxing by having breakfast served in their stateroom, an efficient steward appears with what ever the salt air has done to one's usually restrained "petit dejeuner" land-controlled appetite.

Next, in a leisurely manner, Germaine tells us, there is the swimming pool. For the deck-chair group, beef broth is served with those health-giving pilot soda crackers. Quite reviving for the sedentary. For the more active, what with shuffle board and constitutionals briskly around the decks, there are bars strategically available, plus snacks.

For the swimmers, hors d'oeuvres, drinks, stave off starvation until the lavish buffet is set up around the pool. All most informal and one wonders vaguely how to become accustomed again to such things as calorie-counting after returning to work in Carmel!

Off to the sauna and gymnasium for the men, to the beauty salon for the gals. Siestas at sea? Why waste the time, when there are bridge and other games? The moment of decision is approaching. Which gown to choose for the Captain's Dinner? What is known as "attitude adjustment hour" (happy or c-t) has everyone on the alert. What happened on land? Suddenly no one really cares. Now is here, manana is beyond sunset. Waves softly caress this great ship of subtle amusement.

"Shall we attend the cinema?" (full-screen, big city auditorium replica) somewhat yawning matrons ask in the elevator. "Or ... well, let's see what the night has to offer."

Offering consists of live entertainment ... hula dancers, singers, top-notch comedians and "name" orchestra for dancing. What intrigues "Party Plans" is that there are on the average 150 well-heeled distaff passengers aboard. Dancing? There is always the bar ... dominoes, a look at the moon, wishful thinking ... plans for another cruise.

Which reminds us that Carmel-in-the-Sea (recall this past week?) has the same problem ... too many L.O.O., but with Keds, instead of heels. Sensible.

This week, we're thinking about the long menus Germaine brought back for Phyllis to look over. How in the world could anyone or any ship hold that much in its "galley" or commissary?

Excerpts from the daily "floating hotel" dinner menu: Ten appetizers. Three soups. Two fish (why so limited at sea?) Seven entrees. One roast. (Rather skimpy). Vegetables, nine. Cold Buffet: Four. Salads: Ten. Desserts: Ten. (Who needs any? Alka Selzer and Bromo must do a fine job there). Cheese ... a selection of fine imported cheese ... etc.

Then, along about midnight, delicate turkey, Smithfield ham pate de foie gras sandwiches. Hungry anyone? In your stateroom, there is a basket of fruit! Papaya with pepsin seeds for indigestion, fresh pineapple fingers (which you can soak in rum by dialing that ready steward), Kona coffee if walking the plank is your oblivion ... there are many security guards for this mal-de-mer nostalgia.

So now, the Captain's Dinner. This is really too much even for Carmel! Cassolette of Frogs Legs; Gaspe Salmon (why not Monterey Bay?) accompanied by champagne punch, frappe. We are remiss in saying that the Captain's Dinner was preceded by all the champagne anyone could swallow.

Frankly, your local observer would first choose, if far at sea: Green Turtle Soup ... plus Amontillado Sherry and go out on deck, gaze at the sea and breathe in all that breeze.

Recipes? From "Pineapples, Passion Fruit and Poi", published by Charles E. Tuttle, (we're omitting the poi), here is our favorite:

Kone Inn Banana Bread

Two cups granulated sugar — One cup shortening
Six ripe bananas, mashed — Four eggs, beaten
Two and a half cups cake flour — One t. salt
Two t. baking soda

Sift last 3 items 3 times. Blend wet and dry ingredients. Do not overmix. Bake at 350 F. about 50 min. (This should make two 1-lb., 4-oz. loaves). Marvelous served warm just out of the oven with guava and-or pineapple marmalade. Butter? Passion fruit? Try Cruising-Cuisine.

Someone special is waiting for your holiday greetings! Don't keep them waiting.
Make certain your holiday gifts and cards arrive on time.

The music corner

BY IRVING W. GREENBERG, Ph.D.

A very interesting concert of modern music took place Sunday at Sunset Center. The principals involved were: Andor Toth, violin (substituting for Jacob Krachmalnik, who became ill at the last minute); Rosario Mazzeo, clarinet; and Katie Clare Mazzeo, piano. All the featured works were compositions of the 20's and 30's.

The first piece performed was the Sonata for Clarinet and Piano by Francis Poulenc. It is a tour de force, resembling the early compositions of Prokofiev. It is startingly different from the graceful, poignant later music so congenial to the spirit of Poulenc.

The sonata is in three movements: Allego tristamente, Romanza, and Allegro con Fuoco. The nostalgic Romanza fitted in very well between the first and second vigorous allegri. It was performed with grace, beautiful intonation, and a remarkable balance of tone between the clarinet of Mr. Mazzeo and the piano of Mrs. Mazzeo.

The second work was a short composition of Paul Hindemith, "Abendkonzert". It features the clarinet and the violin in an unusual combination of instrumentation. It has a certain amount of charming bravural writing for each of the soloists and it was indeed very well expressed by Andor Toth, the violinist and Rosario Mazzeo, the clarinetist. The two movements, marked "Lebhaft" (lively) and "Maessig bewegt" (Moderately agitated), exhibit a facet of Hindemith's early musical expression.

The Suite for Violin, Clarinet and Piano by Darius Milhaud followed. It is very characteristic writing of the early Milhaud, with its tremulous accent for each of three instruments, and the trialogue of expression in order to effectively capture the sonority of each of the individual instruments. It is in four movements, marked: Ouverture, Divertissement, Jeu, and Introduction et Finale. Of particular interest here was the third movement, in which the piano is silent, the clarinet and the violin alternating in rhythmic pulsations in dialogue form. It was beautifully displayed by the strong articulation of Mr. Toth's violin and the refined, lovely range of Mr. Mazzeo's clarinet. Although at times, Milhaud's compositions have erred on the side of artistic fol-de-rol, in this work he showed his more intense and absorbing side -- beautiful and inventive creativity.

After the intermission, the most interesting work, the Sonata No. 2 in D major, Op. 94a for Violin and Piano by Sergei Prokofiev, was performed by Mr. Toth and Mr. Mazzeo. Although Prokofiev's Sonata No. 1 in F minor seems to have made very little headway in the matter of programming, this second sonata has amply atoned for this lack of performance. In the four movements: Moderato, scherzo, andante, and Allegro con brio, there is sufficient evidence of Prokofiev's reverence and involvement with his musical past, not only in the order of the movements of the sonata, but also in the expressiveness and eloquence that dominates this sonata from the very beginning, and is accentuated and amplified as the work progresses. Bucolic charm, tenderness, and the ingratiating qualities of Prokofiev's music were here easily apparant.

There is a nostalgic resemblance to his Love of the Three Oranges and the First Violin Concerto. The interpretation of the work by the two soloists amply brought out the intentions of the composer. The rubato of the piano coupled with the lovely glissandi of the violin, made of this sonata the beautiful, sonorous composition that it was written.

It was indeed refreshing to hear for once a program of such calibre and different aspect, after the continual baroque and romantic music that is the normal fare of the concertgoer.

The recommended recordings of the above works are as follows:

Francis Poulenc: Sonata for Clarinet and Piano: Fevrier, piano and Boutard, Clarinet, on Nonesuch H-71033.

Paul Hindemith: Abendkonzert: No recording at present available, but the Musical Heritage Society, New York, promises one soon.

Darius Milhaud: Suite for Violin, Clarinet and Piano: Ritter, Kell and Rosen on Decca 9740.

Sergei Prokofiev: Sonata No. 2 for Violin and Piano, Op. 94a: Perlman and Ashkenazi on RCA Victor LSC-3118.

CARMEL HIGH SCHOOL'S Creative Dance Workshop is a group of students who pursue their interest in the dance in a class after school, directed by the Modern Dance instructor Sharon Elliott. Their class efforts have resulted in a Modern Dance concert which opens Thursday and runs Friday and Saturday in Brey Hall at 8:00. Shown are Jonathan Mullan, Kim Gregory and Vicky McBride in "God Is Alive, Magic is Afoot."

Ben Curry rebuilding Colombian ranch, village

Mrs. Ena Douglas-Grundy, whose son Ben Curry lost his Colombian ranch to floods, as reported in the Pine Cone last week, says that later reports indicate the catastrophe was not total.

"A friend was finally able to establish radio contact," says Mrs. Douglas-Grundy.

"Ben said he is repairing the road to the ranch and that the house is repairable, although it's filled with mud."

She said Ben is also helping rebuild Poponte, the nearest village to his ranch. Poponte was virtually washed away by floods resulting from five straight days of rain early last month.

"Ben says there is an urgent need for food and materials," says Mrs. Douglas-Grundy. "I've already sent the donations I've received from friends in Carmel to Bogota."

Word of the floods didn't circulate as widely as might be expected because of concurrent floods in Pakistan and the Philippines, says Mrs. Douglas-Grundy.

"I just received a letter from the Colombian ambassador to England and he said he didn't hear of the floods for weeks," she said.

Fort Ord Band in free concert tonight

Fort Ord's 28th Army Band will play a free Christmas concert sponsored by the City of Carmel tonight at 8 p.m. at Sunset Auditorium.

Among the selections are "Christmas March" by Edward Franco Goldman, "The Sound of Christmas" by Lloyd Conley, "The Carol of the Drum," "A Christmas Fantasy" by Clifford Lillys, "Sleigh Ride" by Leroy Anderson, and "An Old English Christmas."

The band will also play Irving Berlin's "White Christmas," "Three Songs for Christmas," Leroy Anderson's "Finale of a Christmas Festival" and "Rudolph, the Rednosed Reindeer."

Court to rule on anti-sitting law

The State Supreme Court likely will rule on the constitutionality of Carmel's anti-reclining park law anywhere within two to eight months, City Attorney William B. Burleigh said yesterday.

Burleigh argued the city's case Dec. 1 before the court.

"I said that the ordinance is a reasonable approach to protect the park," he said.

The ordinance forbids sitting on Devendorf Park lawns or sidewalks, climbing trees or walking, standing or sitting on monuments, railings or other property not normally used for those purposes.

The ordinance was challenged by Ann Kessinger Parr who was arrested in August 1968 as she sat in the park during a meeting sponsored by opponents of the ordinance.

Burleigh said his presentation in the case is completed.

Caroleers from Seaside to perform at Mission

Mission San Carlos de Borromeo will ring with carols at 11:45 a.m. Monday as students from Seaside's Del Rey Woods School visit as part of their caroling field trip around the Monterey Peninsula.

About 60 children are taking part in the excursion, 29 from Mary Lou Johns' fourth grade class and 31 from Julia Cates' sixth grade class.

The youngsters will be accompanied by their teachers on the bus trip.

The Carmel stop is the fifth of six by the youngsters during the day.

Arrangements were made by Serina Miller, a young volunteer aide.

TROOP 2063

By Barbara Bell

In Girl Scouts we made ABC books for the children in Chular. We cut nice pictures out of magazines and pasted them on to pieces of paper. Then we wrote what the picture was and how to write it. We also made puzzles by pasting a picture on a piece of cardboard and cutting it up. Troop 2063 would like to thank St. Dunstans Church for conating so much clothes and toys for the children in Chular.

Legal Notice

RESOLUTION NO. 903
ESTABLISHING PREVAILING WAGE SCALE

BE IT RESOLVED THAT:
Bidders are hereby notified that pursuant to the statutes of the State of California, the District has ascertained the general prevailing rate of wages in the locality in which the work under this contract is to be performed. The schedule of prevailing wages so determined is set forth below and establishes the prevailing rate for the fiscal year July 1, 1970 - June 30, 1971.
For all wage scales and classifications not listed, or not correctly shown, the prevailing Union scale shall apply. The rate for legal holidays and overtime work, and the allowances for vacations, pensions and health and welfare, shall be in accordance with the local trade agreements in effect at the time of bidding.
It shall be mandatory upon the contractor to whom the contract is awarded and upon any subcontractor under him, to pay not less than the said specified rates to all laborers, workmen and mechanics employed by them in the execution of the contract.
Bidders are further notified that the United States Government Federal Water Quality Administration may be expected to make a contribution to the work under contracts. Accordingly, said contracts shall contain certain special requirements set forth in the contract documents. There will be included as part of the specifications and special requirements the Federal Wage Scales determined by the United States Secretary of Labor, and it shall be incumbent upon the contractor and any subcontractor under him to pay not less than the minimum hourly wages and fringe benefits specified therein to the various laborers and mechanics employed directly upon the site of the work. In case of a conflict with the prevailing wage rates determined by the District Board and listed below, the higher rates shall obtain.

Classification	Hourly Rate	Per Diem (8 hours)
Carpenters	$ 6.945	$55.56
Concrete Finishers	5.62	44.96
Crane Operators	7.38	59.04
Electrician	7.85	62.80
Painter	7.37	58.96
Plumber	7.84	62.72
Laborer	4.935	39.48
Piledriver Oilers	5.60	44.80
Piledriver Operators	7.43	59.44
Truck Driver	5.675	45.40
Iron Worker (reinforcing)	6.37	50.96

DEAR SANTA CLAUS, Mother and the children would love this house for Christmas! It's "newish" (only 6 years old) and the floor plan is excellent (no traffic patterns through rooms) and the kitchen with built-ins opens onto the family room so everyone can join in on the activities. The living room takes a grand piano and has a raised-hearth fireplace, and there is a barbecue fireplace in the family room. The master bedroom is extra large and has wonderful closets, there are two other nice bedrooms, two baths and another room and bath could be developed on a lower level. Located in a choice area of Carmel Woods adjoining the Pebble Beach green belt, it is convenient to Woods School and has a lovely canyon outlook. Realistically priced for the young family pocketbook at $39,500! Exclusive.

CARMEL POINT LOT. Level and with beautiful lagoon view, just a stone's throw from the River Beach. $20,000 and liberal financing is available.

NEEDS REDECORATING but this miniature Monterey Colonial can be a little jewel. Situated on a quiet street this shuttered redwood home with shake roof has two bedrooms plus a sun room, a separate dining room with wainscoating and corner dish cupboards, a living room with corner stone fireplace...and a small studio or work room attached to the garage. See this at $39,500. Exclusive.

Mixed Blessings

We are happy to be able to say that we are practically sold out of all the nice homes which were listed with us this year, and as a consequence we find ourselves in the unhappy state of having buyers but being shy of homes to fill their requests. And so we ask, "May we have the privilege of expending our dedicated efforts in your behalf when you find that the time has come for you to list your home for sale."

LINES FROM LOIS ABOUT SOME OLD CARMEL CHARM

Would happiness be a little house in the woods with geranium, roses, lovely trees, brick patio for sun and brick fireplace for winter evenings. Would you like your yard brick-walled and grapestake fenced for that dog who thinks you are God and the birds you love to watch at the feeders? Would you like "separate but equal" quarters for your treasured guest or your housekeeper-companion? Would you like to be off the tourist path, yet close to Carmel for the post office and groceries? Then this is YOUR home for only $49,500.

Our Mini-Mansion
Near the Golden Bough Theater (which also means near town and the beach, of course) we have a great old house with turrets and nooks and crannies and 4 bedrooms, 2 baths, separate entrances to different parts of the house, a sewing room up under the eaves, fireplace, ocean view through the trees, double garage -- and charm! Best of all, a price of $49,500, and the house is in beautiful condition.

400 Yards from the Beach
On Santa Lucia, this famous landmark home built on a choice large lot years ago by retiring college professors is well known for having one of the most beautiful and interesting living rooms in Carmel. Kitchen and baths suffer from obsolescence, but there are easy remedies, and there are those who feel that its weathered patina and its large lot (conservatively valued at $40,000) make well worth while doing some fix-up after acquiring the property for only $52,500.

On Carmel Point
We present a timeless traditional suiting perfectly the many moods of Carmel. Friendly wood fires in the handsome fireplace of the wood-paneled living room, or in the cozy country kitchen for misty days. Mullioned windows open to intimate little patios for good looking when its gloomy and outdoor pleasure when its sunny, enclosed by fine old stone walls. It's a Hugh Comstock-built "storybook" house, with his personal attention to the fine construction and finish details. In new condition throughout. This mellow charmer is offered for $119,000.

High school hoopsters journey to tourney

Carmel High School's varsity basketball team travels by car into the San Joaquin Valley today to play three days of basketball in Gustine, a Merced County town with a population of 3,250 (1965 census).

The event is the Gustine Tournament, an elimination competition to be played today, tomorrow and Saturday.

Carmel's first game is against Livingston at 6 p.m. tonight. The winner plays the winner of the Hughson-Orestemba game Saturday.

"I assume these are real places," said Coach Dick Charles yesterday. "Gustine's out in the valley somewhere toward Yosemite, about a two-and-a-half hour drive. That's all I know."

Except for Charles, who has a cold, the team is in good health.

Charles is contemplating a change in the starting lineup, possibly substituting Craig Dickenson for Jim Conlan at guard and John Engstrom for Steve Hiaasen at center.

He will continue starting James Thorn and John Neale at forwards and Kevin Cunningham at the other guard.

Thorn is averaging 12 points a game and Neale and Cunningham close to 15 points.

Carmel lost its first two games of the season last weekend at the Sacramento Jamboree to Encina High School 49-47 and Buchser High School 83-66.

"The kids played real well," said Charles. "They almost beat Encina and that's a big Sacramento school. Buchser was Central Coast League champions last year, of course, so we kind of stood around and watched them. But we didn't do that badly. As long as we've played in that tournament we haven't won a game but this was about the best we've ever done. I think we have a pretty good team this year."

The Carmel Junior varsity plays in the Gonzales Tournament tomorrow and Saturday at Gonzales.

KLEPICH HONORED

Cadet candidate John P. Klepich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Klepich of Carmel, recently was named to the position of company commander at the U.S. Military Academy Preparatory School at Fort Belvoir, Va.

BEVERLY MANOR Convalescent Hospital, located on the Carmel-Pacific Grove Highway near Highway 1, has recently instituted a new program offering complete residential care services. Hospital administrator Robert T. Nelson announced that Beverly Manor will continue its well known rehabilitation program for post surgery and convalescent patients, but advised that these patients are housed in a separate portion of the 99-bed facility. Residential care guests receive daily maid service, meals prepared by a dietitian, and many other services. Twenty-four hour nursing care is also provided and guests can utilize the physical and occupational therapy services of the adjacent nursing section of Beverly Manor.
